Just a Sweet Dumb Girl!

By Small

Forgotten Sweetheart by MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XX

A woman representing the Travellers' Aid and wearing the official badge of that organization approached Pat as she entered the New York terminal. "Are you Pat Waring from Memphis?" the woman asked. "I have a telegram for her."

Pat's heart leaped, but she was a clever little actress and her nervousness was not apparent. She glanced indifferently at the telegram and shook her head. "My name is Rosa Lee," she said pleasantly.

The woman hesitated, still eyeing Pat doubtfully. "There was another blond girl in my car," Pat said easily. "Just about my size, too." She looked back and saw that the blond girl who had sat near her was examining her luggage.

"Thank you," said the Travellers' Aid representative and moved on. Pat started off calmly but quickened her steps a moment later. "I want a taxi in a hurry," she told the red cap. She breathed a sigh of relief a moment later when she was spinning along the streets in the cab. So the family had sent a wire, no doubt pleading with her to come back! Well, she wouldn't go back. If they only knew what torture it had been! Already she was feeling better, as though she had left the old Pat behind and had assumed a new identity. She would write to-night telling her mother not to worry, but she would not give them her address until they became accustomed to the idea of her being away, more confident that she could take care of herself.

There was no lonelier, more troubled girl in all New York than Joan Waring when she moved along with the crowd through the gates into the big railway station. Searching the lobby, she saw the Travellers' Aid desk, identifying it by the lighted globes, the two hemispheres which symbolize the agency's far-reaching service.

Joan spoke to the alert, pleasant-faced woman at the desk. "I'm Joan Waring from Memphis. I wired about my sister—"

"Yes, Miss Waring. We received the telegram and we believed we had found your sister but—"

"She isn't here?" Joan cried. "We stopped a girl who answered the description but she said she was not Pat Waring. Perhaps we should have held her, but she talked so naturally and said there was another blond girl in the same coach. This other girl's relatives appeared while Miss Bell was questioning her."

"What was the first girl like?" Joan asked unhappily.

The woman began a careful description of Pat's dark blue suit, curly blond hair, and small hat. Even before she mentioned the heavy silver locket with flat links, Joan was nodding miserably. Tears rolled unheeded down her cheeks.

"That was Pat," she said. "She has lots of police for her age but she's really inexperienced. I'm so frightened, so afraid of what may happen—"

"Nothing will happen," the older woman reassured her. "From Miss Bell's description, I feel sure your sister will take very good care of herself. She has funds?"

"She could take care of herself for a month or six weeks on what she has."

The brisk, matter-of-fact, cheerful voice helped, but Joan knew that as soon as she was alone again the terrible doubts lurking in her mind would spring out to terrify her once more.

"Shouldn't I go to the police?" she asked.

"That might be very embarrassing for your sister. Why don't you try the employment agencies first—the easily accessible ones where you'd be likely to go if you were looking for work? That's the place where you'll probably find her. I'll give you a list of addresses."

While she was writing, the Travellers' Aid representative glanced at Joan's white, anxious face and said kindly, "You look very tired, my dear. We could make you comfortable in our rooms downtown until you decide where you want to stay."

"Thank you. You are very kind but I think I'd better get settled right away."

"There's a very nice woman's hotel I can send you to. It's not expensive and it's near the heart of the city." The woman wrote down the address and handed the slip of paper to Joan. A short while later Joan was established in a decorous little room, fastidiously neat, with ruffled curtains at the window to add a home-like touch. But she did not feel at home. She was unutterably lonely and discouraged and heart-sick.

She went to the window and looked out, but turned away with a shudder. Pat was so young to be alone in this great, bewildering place, spread like an enormous, glittering net about her. Pat was alone here to-night, just as Joan was. Poor little brave, unhappy Pat!

Joan's head was throbbing. She decided to go to bed. To-morrow she would begin her search for Pat, the search which must succeed soon! Joan got into bed, turning her face against the pillow which was soon wet with tears.

Two weeks of loneliness, of small bills mounting to large ones. Two weeks of stifled fears and determined courage. Joan became conscious of commiserating glances when she entered the hotel lobby. She passed through the lobby on her way to the street, through it again to go to her room. The process seemed mechanical. It was so exactly the same every day.

She had visited all the employment agencies on the list given her by the Travellers' Aid representative and many others, as well. She had interviewed personnel managers in department stores. She had searched crowds on the streets until her eyes ached, her heart leaping at the sight of every slender, blond girl who for a moment looked like Pat.

She had inserted a message in the classified columns of a morning and evening newspaper, begging Pat to call her. She had tried every means she could think of to find her sister, every means that had been suggested to her, and she had failed.

Joan's face was thin and worn from strain, worry and weariness. One day at noon she sat in a small restaurant on Broadway, eating a frugal meal of soup and crackers and milk. Her thoughts were running their troubled course. Her funds were very low. Unless she could find work she must return home soon. Counting pennies and practicing petty economies would not help much longer.

"I can't leave without Pat!" Joan thought desperately. "I'll stand in the bread line first!"

Two girls, attractive, self-assured, with the unmistakable stamp of those who earn their own way in the world, sat down at the table. Their animated chatter flowed about Joan. It was Saturday afternoon and the girls were planning to attend a movie.

"Have you seen Norma Shearer at the Capitol?" one of them asked, turning to Joan. "She's swell!"

Joan shook her head. "I've been too busy to see any shows lately." Then on impulse, she asked, "Do you know where I could get a job?"

Both girls stared. "You've got to hustle to grab a job these days," one of them volunteered. "You need a never-take-no-look-in-your-eyes. What can you do?"

"I can sing," Joan answered, wondering a little that she felt no regretment at the other's casual manner. She added, "I have coached students preparing for college."

"Heavens!" The exclamation spoke volumes. "Well, the other girl went on, 'if you land a job it won't be coaching. Maybe, though, you could be a model. That's what I do—at Himmels' store. And sometimes I pose for soap advertisements. My face isn't my fortune but my arm holding a snow white cake of soap—well, you wouldn't believe it!"

"I don't know," said Joan hesitantly. "If I could do anything like that—"

"Aren't sold on the proposition, are you? Well, you have the right to suit yourself. If you ever want to talk your troubles over, call me up." She drew a card from her purse and scribbled across it.

Joan took the card and read. "Kate Jones. Woodmere Apartments," followed by a telephone number. She thanked the stranger who said, "Forget it! You'd make a swell model. If luck runs away from you, call me."

A week later, frightened by her fast diminishing funds and with the stabbing fear that she must leave New York without finding

Pat, Joan took up the telephone and called the number Kate Jones had given her.

SOVIET'S WARNING TO JAPANESE

Moscow, Feb. 27. The official Soviet press to-day warns Japan that future negotiations for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway must be conducted on a sincere and realistic basis. The Soviet Union, it is said, does not intend to be made a party to a stage play and will resist all attempts to confiscate the railroad or to interfere with its operations.

Levstov states: "The external and internal situation in Japan on the one side and the decisiveness of the Soviet policy on the other, have helped Japanese to understand that it is impossible to impose their will by methods of violence on a great power like Soviet Russia."

The Soviet Union believes that if its frontiers are respected and its interests not hampered, all dubious questions between the Soviet and Japan can be solved.

Pravda declares that those handling the negotiations in Tokyo, Harbin or Changchun "must remember any attempt to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway or interfere with its operation will meet with decisive resistance from the side of the Soviet Union."—United Press.

Pat, Joan took up the telephone and called the number Kate Jones had given her.

Clean Within & Without!
The Perfectly Healthy Child

Chubby, rosy cheeks and a bright smiling face should be the heritage of every child, and if these are lacking there must be a reason—and a remedy too!

A simple well-tried method of ensuring these signs of good health is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets whenever the little one is ailing.

Mildly laxative, these Tablets keep the infantile intestinal tract clear and clean, which is the first essential for perfect health. Besides, BABY'S OWN TABLETS correct wind and colic, aid digestion, allay feverishness, make teething easy, expel worms, and strengthen the little one's resistance to colds. On account of their pleasant taste there is never any fuss over administering Baby's Own Tablets, as is so often the case when nauseating medicines such as Castor Oil are given.

Keep a vial always in the home—every chemist sells them, and your children will thrive when minor ailments which beset them are promptly corrected by the use of Baby's Own Tablets.

ON AN ENGLISH FARM

Rich pasturage is essential to dairy produce, and it is in England with its excellent grazing that "Ideal" Milk is prepared.

From selected herds of cows are obtained milk supplies unsurpassable for quality and cleanliness; then a most rigid and scientific control is exercised. This is not relaxed from the time the cows are milked until the finished product is packed in hermetically sealed tins.

Only by such means can "Ideal" Milk be guaranteed to reach you so fresh and pure.

BRITAIN'S STEADY PROGRESS

Not only is British trade on the up-grade, but the improvement noteworthy in recent months has come to stay. That is the conclusion reached by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who, from his position as Chancellor of the Exchequer and by reason of his close contact with trading interests, is able to speak with some authority on the subject. The belief is also evidently held by our manufacturers, who are so encouraged by prospects that they feel they can justifiably expand their plant and equipment. The steady upward trend, has been manifest for some time now, so much so that in the iron and steel industries there has been so much activity that in some directions difficulty has been experienced in fulfilling requirements of consumers. The position in the coal-mining areas is also improving, whilst ship-building is taking a turn for the better. Engineering, metal goods, the motor industry and distributive trades have also been reporting better conditions, and there has been a marked improvement in the pottery industry. The effect of this activity is seen in a decided increase in the number of people actually in employment. In recent months this increase has been most marked; a fact which provides the best possible evidence of the revival of trade activity. There is, of course, a tremendous amount of leeway to be made up, but it is reassuring to feel that the trend is at any rate in the right direction. The world position is still far from being composed, and the innumerable barriers to expansion provided by tariff walls and other obstructions make the task of complete recovery extremely difficult. Yet, in spite of these obstacles, British business men are adapting themselves to the circumstances in a manner which proves that the old spirit of quiet determination is still very much alive. Neither in the realm of commerce nor of finance has Britain plunged into experiments of doubtful value. Her position to-day is the result of wise and patient action along sound lines. The measure of progress already recorded is all the more satisfying when we bear in mind the immensity of the difficulties which have had to be faced. It is, in fact, little short of miraculous that at a time when so many other nations are still in the depths of depression, Britain should be showing definite signs of permanent recovery.

NOTES OF THE DAY

EUROPEAN MAZE

The European political tangle in makes a fantastic picture in our minds, we should not be too much surprised by the dual life led by "Arthur Leon Castledale," dead in a motor-car crash in London, who was a Cambridge waiter by day and a supposed wealthy man about town by night—in stark truth, an adventurer and a criminal.

THE INFERENCE

The inference appears to be obvious. No trouble is expected because the occasion for quarrel has been removed or negotiations to that end are proceeding satisfactorily. An agreement, according to one source, is expected in the next few days but what will be the end of it all, no-one can foresee. Such a development, following so closely in the wake of Signor Suvitch's trip to Vienna and Budapest, would be surprising. It may mean peace between Austria and Germany. But it would increase the alarm and anxieties in Rome and Paris, not to mention London.

MUSSOLINI'S PLANS

That Signor Mussolini's instructions to Signor Suvitch had nothing to do with Austria's change of front is quite certain. If Hitler anticipates Major Fey, the Italian reaction will be far from favourable. Signor Mussolini has other ideas and other plans and believes that Dr. Dollfuss is with him. The Austrian Chancellor may, however, find himself caught up by a strong current and must go with the stream. A year in office has made him a realist. If the Heimwehr goes Nazi he must follow or quit.

GERMANY AND PRAGUE

Equally interesting are the German overtures to Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benes may well wonder which way to turn. A close friendship between Austria and Germany, hemming his country in between two Nazi States, will not be viewed by the Czech Foreign Minister with any complacency. And the Italian alternative, an Italo-Austro-Hungarian alliance, is politically almost as displeasing, threatening, as it does, a wedge between the Little Entente Powers. Germany's Non-Aggression Pact offer cannot lightly be dismissed in these circumstances and there would be no hesitation if other considerations did not enter into the question. But France looms very large and M. Benes is not likely to be stampeded into any move that threatens Czechoslovakia relations with France. Herr Hitler has weakened Poland away from French influence. Prague offers a much more difficult proposition.

OPEN-BOOK EXAMINATIONS

From the University of Chicago comes the announcement that students in the "humanities" course will be allowed to bring their textbooks, notes and whatever other reference material they wish when they take their final examinations next June. The question will be designed not merely to test the student's knowledge of facts but his ability to find and correlate them and draw conclusions therefrom. The idea seems meritorious. It much more nearly approximates the ordinary conditions in which the students will do his later work and apply his intellectual equipment. There he would be considered slipshod in his methods if he wasted time trying to remember uncertainly what can be checked with certainty in reference manuals. Of course, a certain amount of ready information is necessary for quickness in every vocation or avocation, but this will implant itself with use.

THE "CARTWHEEL" RETURNS

Manufacturers in Illinois were responsible for an interesting experiment a week or two ago when they met their entire weekly payroll with silver dollars. Instead of getting envelopes containing banknotes, the workers got little canvas sacks filled with dollars—heavy, clinking, and somehow exceedingly satisfying to handle. The step was taken, it is explained, to popularise silver currency and to bring more pressure on the administration in its silver policy. So far as it went it was a good idea. There is something solid and comforting about the feeling of a silver dollar. It feels like more money than a dollar bill, for some reason; it rings in an authoritative manner when thrown down on a counter. Obviously if silver can be made more popular as a medium of exchange in the United States and other parts of the world, there would be little need for artificial price stimulation.

REAL LIFE JEKYLLS AND HYDES

By BERNARD FALK

THOUGH the strange detail to gentleman of kenning, and vice-versa.

In my early days in London no more extravagant form of double life was led than by a Dickensian character, whose ambition was to live at the rate of £10,000 a year. Having been left only £1,000 a year, he arranged his affairs as follows: Eleven months in the year he stayed at one of the Rowton Houses, permitting himself an expenditure of two or three shillings a day, and the remaining month he moved into the most expensive suite at a fashionable West End hotel—to enjoy the luxurious state of a millionaire.

Thirty days out of the three hundred and sixty-five he dined off Dover sole, caviare, roast chicken and the finest dishes procurable; the other three hundred and thirty-five days he fed meagrely on the staple foods of the very poor—cheese, herrings, streaky bacon, etc.

Such extremes of luxury and discomfort were the price this human oddity gladly paid to be treated as a millionaire for a few passing days each year. Yet in whatever role he figured, whether the Rowton House lodger of the long spring, summer and autumn months, or the honoured "millionaire" hotel guest of the one June month (the London season), he conducted himself as to the manner born. He might expressly have been cut out for his incredible double life.

Discussing the strange fellow with the hotel manager who had pledged me to secrecy, I asked myself whether the spirit of J.M.W. Turner, the most famous landscape painter, had not, by some magical means, passed into him, for in the reverse sense that great man was inclined to almost the same kind of eccentric behaviour. Though he had a fortune rapidly mounting towards £150,000, Turner loved to take nocturnal rambles in Limehouse and Wapping, finding pleasure in the people met in the lowliest side streets.

In the last phase of his life, when his official address was Queen Anne-street, he developed a mania for disappearing. For days at a time he vanished, without venturing to offer the slightest explanation for his absences. When his friends pressed him to disclose his new retreat he put them off with all sorts of subterfuges and adroit evasions. Finally a letter found in an old coat gave his housekeeper the necessary clue, and she tracked him down. He had taken a house at Chelsea, near Cremorne Gardens. There Turner, the greatest landscape painter in England, if not in the world, had become Admiral Booth—or, in moments of familiarity, "Puggy" Booth.

Mild in comparison is the dissimulation of Haroun al Raschid, the famous Caliph of the Arabian Nights, who, indistinguishable from an ordinary citizen, would wander unrecognised about the streets of Baghdad, in order to hear what the common people were saying.

Perhaps for a case to match that of Turner's we must fall back on the instance of the Scottish king who, weary of his crown, and the heavy responsibilities of a "Seriously, Emil, when can you drop out to the house and teach my wife something about cooking?"

The Very Idea!

ALWAYS LOOK A HORSE IN THE FACE

By Eddie Kelly, Horse Follower

HAVE you joined the Back to the Horse Movement? In other words, how much did you lose at Happy Valley yesterday?

What we'd like to see is something original at the races. People are getting tired of the same old thing year after year; going out in taxis, watching the same old horses lose their same old money, and coming home in tram-cars.

Let's have a few innovations. For instance, as soon as a race-goer enters the gate, he should be presented with a toy balloon and carnival cap. Prizes could be given for the best fancy dress costumes, with special prizes for best impersonation of successful punter.

A better innovation would be to hand jockeys who don't come in first, second or third over the fence to punters. This arrangement could also be made to apply to the starter who raised the tape when the hot favourite was facing in the opposite direction.

As the annual races are so well patronised by ladies, a number of huge mat-sheds should be erected to park them in. This would prevent them from cramping betting arrangements.

Pass-out checks should be issued at the tiffin interval, in order to enable race-goers living in Kowloon to go home, have tiffin, mow the lawn, do odd jobs around the house, dress again, bite finger-nails and return to the course long before the official tiffin party had gulped down its frankfurter and beer.

To save innocent men from persecution, Ladies' Enquiry Offices should be established throughout the course. Ladies wishing to know "What Price Glory?" etcetera, would then have to apply to their own offices, where the attendants can be relieved from their exacting duties every five minutes.

In conclusion, there should be a Suggestion Box at each entrance.

No more than one suggestion should, however, be accepted from each punter as to what should happen to the rank outsider that beats the favourite in the last race.

HORSEFEATHERS

We refuse to mention names, but here is the story about the local racehorse owner who told off his chemist.

"Watnell," he boomed, "watnell's the idea. When I ask for embrocation for a pony's legs I want embrocation—not lavender water, like the last bottle you sold me. I rubbed it on my griffin the day before yesterday, and ever since then—has done nothing but look at herself in the water trough and sigh."

A NEW COMPETITION

Well, children, ever since we saw that Film Competition in a local newspaper we have become competitive all over. So we have prepared a teeny weeny film competition all for yourselves. All you have to do is to supply the missing letters in these film players' names:—

R*M*N N*V*RO
G*R*T G*RB
K*Y FR*CS
OWN NORES

Just in case it was too difficult, here is the solution: Ramon Navarro, Greta Garbo, Kay Francis, Owen Noares. And if any of you little squibs complain that the last name is spelt wrongly, all we can say is that even at your age you should know that there is an O in Nares.

LOCH NESS

Dogberry disputes Nathaniel Gubbins' claim: "Fanny that only one journalist and that journalist me—should hold the secret of Loch Ness, he says."

The "monster" is none other (as we say in the children's magazines)—is none other than Col. D.H.L.*w*r*nce, the uncrowned King of Arabia. He is doing "hush-hush" work for the Government, planning sites for aeroplane hangars.

A self-sacrificing piece of work, especially when the Loch freezes. My interview with the "Monster" was necessarily a guarded one. In accordance with War Office instructions (handed to me, at a West End restaurant, in the form of a potato rissole) I visited the Loch disguised as a ticket-inspector.

After giving the password, the head of Col. L*w*r*nce appeared cautiously above the surface. I then sat up a red and green Vandy light, in accordance with instructions.

"Is that Colonel L*w*r*nce?" I now inquired in a hoarse whisper. "No," replied the "Monster." "Are you 'Shaw'?" said I. There was a cackle of girlish laughter and the "Monster" disappeared below the surface.

SENATE IN REVOLT

PASSES A BONUS AMENDMENT

WHITE HOUSE VETO CERTAIN

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received, February 27, 8.45 a.m.)

Washington, Feb. 27. A stir has been caused in political circles by the action of the Senate in passing the Independent Offices Bill with the inclusion of important amendments, restoring more than $354,000,000 of war veterans' benefits, which were cut in last year's economy act.

Administration leaders declared that President Roosevelt would refuse to accept the Bill in its present form and would veto the Bill as a result of the bonus amendments.

In the meantime, the Senate has defeated the proposal for the making of a cash payment of $2,400,000,000 in return for the Bonus certificates.—United Press.

Rousser adds that the action of the Senate in approving the Bonus amendment to the Independent Offices Bill is in flat defiance of the Administration's economy plans.

The amendment involves the immediate provision of $55,000,000 for the benefit of 20,000 veterans of the war whose disabilities were presumed to be of service origin, but who were removed from the rolls under the Economy Act.

COMMUNICATIONS IN AMERICA

Federal Commission Bill in Senate

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received, February 27, 8.45 a.m.)

Washington, Feb. 27. A Bill has been introduced in the Senate providing the legislation necessary to carry out President Roosevelt's recommendation for a Federal Communications Commission.—United Press.

BRITISH CONSULAR CHANGE

NEW APPOINTMENT TO DANZIG

London, Feb. 27. It was stated at the Foreign Office to-day that the status of the consular post at Danzig having been raised to that of Consulate General, Mr. L. M. Robinson, now British Consul at Amsterdam, where he holds the rank of Consul General, has been promoted and appointed to fill the post at Danzig.

Mr. Robinson's place at Amsterdam will be taken by Mr. Buchanan, formerly Consul at Baltimore.—British Wireless.

L. C. C. BUDGET PRESENTED

REDUCTION OF 2D. IN RATES

London, Feb. 27. Estimates for the coming year were presented at the London County Council meeting to-day.

London's budget anticipates an expenditure during the coming financial year of over £29½ million, a reduction of £500,000 on last year's figure. Several millions are allotted to housing, mainly slum clearance and improvements.

There is a reduction of 2d. in the rates, to 6/1½ in the £.—British Wireless.

BRITISH FINANCE FIGURES

SLIGHT DECLINE IN REVENUE

London, Feb. 27. The latest Treasury returns show that ordinary revenue for the current year up to 24th February amounted to $531,766,084. At the corresponding date of last year the amount stood at $533,740,452.

Ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled $508,322,255, as compared with $734,222,340 at the corresponding date last year.—British Wireless.

BRIGHT SHOW AT QUEEN'S

REVUE'S CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

Several new features were introduced by the "Hello Hongkong" Revue yesterday evening and the programme was much more pleasing than on the first three nights. Miss Charlotte Skerist received a great ovation from the large house at the conclusion of each of her songs, the installation of a microphone enabling her to put over her wonderful voice which on the first night was rather lost to the back seats.

Robert Rhodes again delighted the audience with his vigorous baritone voice, and drew from them hearty applause.

Perhaps the most daring item of the colourful programme was a far dance executed by Laverne Lambert.

A little stage finish would make the show almost impossible to criticise, but, as it is, "Hello Hongkong" is well worth seeing. The final performances will be given to-night, and to-morrow evenings, with a matinee to-morrow.

MR. MCGOVERN'S DEMAND

DISCUSSION IN COMMONS

London, Feb. 27. Mr. Maxton's protest on the steps of No. 10, Downing Street, against the refusal of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald to receive a deputation from the hunger-marchers, was followed up by agitation in the House of Commons.

When Mr. McGovern, the Glasgow extremist, asked the Prime Minister this afternoon that time should be given to discuss a proposal that representatives of the unemployed marchers should be received at the bar of House, Mr. MacDonald replied that the whole problem of unemployment was engaging the constant attention of the Government.

He added that the Bill now before Parliament was designed to make possible an improvement in the lot of those who were unfortunately unemployed. "The views of all sections of the people," he went on, "are made known in this House through their elected representatives, and in the opinion of the Government no advantage would be gained by acceding to the honourable member's request."

After further discussion, it was arranged that the motion should be discussed at the conclusion of to-night's sitting, which is devoted to the committee stage, now approaching its close, of the Unemployment Bill.—British Wireless.

throne, wandered far afield, proclaiming himself a beggar whose worries, proportioned to his means, were infinitesimal.

Of John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man, his fortune was once estimated at 600 million dollars—he used to say that he was happiest when posing as a poor philanthropist, who was hard pressed to spare a few dollars. Armed with a bagful of dimes, i.e., 5 cent pieces, he would distribute the contents to deserving workers on his estate, and the smiles he received in return, and for which he patiently waited, made his amusing pose seem all the more real.

We have the Bible, which never fails us, to round off our illustrations with the moving masquerade of Joseph before his brethren, who had come up to Egypt to buy corn. Who shall forget the way he dissembled before them—pretending to mistake them for spies, then casting them into prison and, finally, when his aged father, the patriarch Jacob, had been persuaded to send along his youngest son, Benjamin, revealing himself, amidst tears, to these, his astonished brethren, as the Joseph they had sold into captivity? In the days of these transactions lasted what a double life he led, this Hebrew interpreter of dreams whom Pharaoh delighted to honour!

Adorn the theme with a moral, and we are done with the reader: Better be your real self, whatever the pains and penalties, than some fictitious person, whatever the imagined benefit. Then, least of all, shall we come to harm.

Leave the masquerade to eccentrics, and people, like tragic Castellan, who live on their wits.

The Arts Association of the H. K. University will hold a debate with the Medicals in the Union Assembly Room on Monday, March 5, at 8.30 p.m. The subject is "Co-education is a success in this University."

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A situation in which a spoilt musical comedy star finds herself falling in love with the man who has openly insulted her and whom she engages as a private secretary in order to humiliate him, is bound to have an appeal for all who appreciate the subtleties and pliancy of such a situation. Filmmakers, therefore, should visit the Central Theatre to-day and see "The Song You Gave Me" in which Bebe Daniels and Victor Varconi, as Mitz and Karl, find themselves in just a situation. A delightful romance bristling with all the devices that go to make worthwhile entertainment, "The Song You Gave Me" was directed by Paul Stein, and Noel Gay has written two numbers, "The Song You Gave Me" and "Who'll Buy Me" which provides haunting musical background.

"Her Bodyguard"

Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson play the leading roles in "Her Bodyguard," romantic comedy produced for Paramount by B. P. Schulberg, which opens to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. Edward Arnold, Johnny Hines, Marjorie White, Alan Dinehart, and Puzzy Lightfoot are the supporting cast. "Her Bodyguard" is the amusing story of the love affair between a beautiful stage star and the private detective assigned by a jealous "sugar daddy" to guard her from rivals. How the girl and the bodyguard outwit evildoers and find happiness together provides a highly funny tale. Miss Gibson is cast as the star, Dinehart, playing the role of her producer, is a gentleman with intentions. Arnold cast as a millionaire, in another elderly fellow with approximately the same idea. Arnold hires the bodyguard, ostensibly to protect the star's jewels, but actually to see that Dinehart doesn't make any progress with her. Wynne is incensed when Lowe, the detective, first appears on the scene, but soon she sees the humour of the situation. Lowe is so captivated by her beauty that even the man who hired him can't get any where near the star. It's not long before they're in love, and from the time on, things move along at a hilarious pace. "Where Have I Heard That Melody," a new song hit by Sam Collier and Arthur Johnston, is introduced during the action of "Her Bodyguard."

"Walls of Gold"

"Walls of Gold," the new Fox Film, adapted for the screen from the best-selling novel of the same name by Kathleen Norris, comes to the King's Theatre, on Thursday. The leading roles are portrayed by Sally Eilers and Norman Foster, the two unforgettable young lovers of "State Fair." The story, aiming with all of Kathleen Norris' directness and logic at the vital concerns of modern youth, goes to the core of a situation in which a young girl is given one of the most difficult choices to make. She is an expensive beauty, and must weigh the advantages of true and unselfish love and those of a life of luxury and ease. The one is offered to her by a young man who adores her. The other is held out to her by the young man's uncle, a man of untold wealth, and, consequently, by an artist's taste peculiarly his own. In "Walls of Gold," Miss Eilers and Norman Foster are said to have roles even more attractive than those that brought them to the forefront as a romantic pair in "State Fair." Their story is told in a highly original and novel way, and includes Rosita Moreno, Spanish dancer and actress; Rochelle Hudson, beautiful newcomer to the screen; Fredric Santley, Marjorie Gateson, Mary Mason and Margaret Seddon.

"Love Lies"

Jerry Walker, while watching a bullfight in Spain, unwittingly leads an ardent Spanish admirer to believe he is "Lord Letgoe," but imagine his consternation when, on a visit to his pal, "Rolly" Rider, an artist, the real Lord Letgoe arrives, followed by the passionate Spanish lady, who immediately throws her arms round Jerry's neck, and addresses him by name. This is the situation that arises in "Love Lies," showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Rolly devises a plan to escape Lord Letgoe out of the way while Jerry deals with his ardent admirer. "Junetta" decides to, then and there, make a portrait of his rich client, who is urged to don a suit of armour for the purpose. The visitor becomes "accidentally" wedged, and Lord Letgoe is unable to free himself. During the production of "Love Lies," Wallis Arthur, who played the part of the worthy peer, on the completion of a rehearsal of this scene, was told it was lunch time. Alas! when he came to remove the vizor it really was wedged. The more he struggled to free himself, the more the other players laughed, thinking he was "crying" for their benefit, but when they reached the studio restaurant, and he did not come, they became anxious. Soon, however, their bells of merriment burst out afresh, for he walked the quacker figure. Wallis arrived complete with vizor, and, disdaining the offers of help from his companions, ordered his lunch, which he forced to eat via the mouthpiece of his uncomfortable head-gear.

"The Power and the Glory"

At the King's Theatre, the new Fox Film, "The Power and the Glory," introduced to the screen, is the Jeanie L. Lasky production that has been heralded throughout the motion picture world as the film that will revolutionize movie making. Narrated by the technique evolved by Lasky from the original script prepared by Preston Sturges, noted playwright. It is the story of a tale of a story, that taken the highlights in a man's life and weaves them into a unified pattern without subjecting the incidents to chronological order. It is this technique that is said to place unusual emphasis on the important elements in the film, thus clearing the way for better character ter development and clearer retelling of the story itself. Spencer Tracy, in what is said to be the outstanding role of his career, portrays the central characterization. Colleen Moore, absent from the screen for the past three years, makes what is regarded as a triumphant return in the leading feminine role. Others in the cast are Ralph Morgan, Helen Vinson, Clifford Jones, Henry Kolker, Sarah Padden, Billy O'Brien, Cullen Johnston and J. Farrell MacDonald.

"Silver Dollar"

In addition to being a highly speeded romance of the adventurous days of the gold rush and silver strike of Colorado, "Silver Dollar," a First National picture starring Edward G. Robinson and now showing at the Alhambra Theatre, is of unusual interest and importance because of its historical background and the scores of relics used which have been handed down from the days of Haw Taber. These relics, some of which are originals, and others replicas, are intimately associated with the life of the colourful Silver King, Yates Martin, whose spectacular career is pictured by Edward G. Robinson. Among these relics are telegraph instruments used to notify Taber of his election as Lieut. Governor, and the tiny carriage in which he wheeled his daughter, "Silver Dollar," about the streets of Denver. Taber's dazzling rise from poverty to fortune, and his subsequent crash, are excitingly depicted in the screen play which was adapted by Carl Zuckerman and Harry Thew from David Kassar's book. Bebe Daniels portrays the part of Martin's dazzling and beautiful second wife, whose marriage to the 30-day Senator was the sensation of Washington, while Aline MacMahon has the role of his first wife, whom he deserted after acquiring wealth, to the scandal of a nation. The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green.

LIKELY F. A. AND SCOTTISH CUP SEMI-FINALISTS

MOTHERWELL, ST. JOHNSTONE AND RANGERS

ST. MIRREN AND CELTIC MAY HAVE TO MEET AGAIN

(By "The Pilgrim")

WITH the quarter-finals of both the English and Scottish Cup competitions being played off on Saturday, Homeside fans will have one of the greatest football feasts of the season—greater even than the Cup final to which thousands have already made application, to find that the capacity of the venue has long been filled.

Arsenal have the fates on their side this season and, but for the luck of the draw, it is hardly likely that they would have continued thus far in a competition which they entered so inauspiciously.

The previous rounds enabled them to settle down in their stride now and the visit of Aston Villa will not be the obstacle it would have been a month ago. The Villa have been going great guns but I cannot easily imagine a report of their victory.

Manchester City are the only Club in this round who survived the distance last season and they have a great chance of going even further. Stoke have improved considerably lately and took points from Aston Villa in the League last week, but it is unlikely that they will beat the City on their own ground.

It is not so unlikely however, as Northampton's eclipse of Huddersfield at the First Division's pitch in the fourth round.

I wonder if Portsmouth will hold the pace they have been setting lately. I think they will win despite the bad luck they encountered in the draw. They travel to Bolton and will probably meet with even more exciting scenes than at Swansea.

The Preston-Leicester match is the most difficult to forecast.

Matters are a little easier north of the border where Aberdeen and Albion Rovers sustain the challenge from the Junior divisions. Albion have a sporting chance, being at home to Motherwell, but the League leaders seem to do better away from home and I expect them to win.

Queen o'South will give St. Johnstone a great game and if they had retained their form of a month or so ago I would fancy them for the semi-finals. As it is I feel that the home club have the winning advantage.

Rangers have the easiest task in entertaining Aberdeen, and Celtic have perhaps the most difficult in their journey to St. Mirren. Although the latter have proved poor League fighters, they will go all out in the major competition of the year.

This Special Cup Training Is Only Superstition

OLD LEAGUE PLAYER SAYS WHAT CLUBS NEED IS REST CURE

The Cup quarter finals to be played on Saturday make this article from the pen of a former player especially interesting now.

"At this stage of the football season, when players are beginning to feel the strain of the League programme and F.A. Cup ties, the question of special training causes a great deal of controversy among players and spectators alike. Opinion is sharply divided as to whether it is beneficial to a team."

"Personally, I was not greatly in favour of going to the seaside or into the country for a long period. I much preferred to get on to a golf course, where I could obtain all the exercise I wanted. In those days there were trainers to whom the name of golf was a curse; so I had put in many spells away from home."

REST FOR CUP TIES.

"It has many advantages and, frankly, in the long run, I think it does a lot of good if, like medicine, it is taken in small doses. But to go week after week to the seaside before each round of the Cup, as some teams did is not special training, but a superstition. They do so because, once upon a time, a team did something out of the ordinary after staying in such and such a place."

"Take the Arsenal and Chelsea as typical examples. Arsenal now go to Brighton regularly, staying at the same hotel, mainly because it was from there that they won the Cup four years ago. Chelsea are going back to Gullford for the reason that they have not lost a match since taking up their quarters there."

"In my opinion, it is a mistake to overdo the special training business. The change of air, the companionship and the restfulness of mind have supplied the required tonic in the first instance. Surely, another pick-me-up is not required a fortnight later."

"After all, the players are perfectly fit at this period. The idea of special training is not to try to make them fitter, but to prevent them from being overtrained or, as it is called, from becoming stale. As a matter of fact, special training is the wrong description. It should be called "special rest for Cup ties." Once a season should be enough."

"While on the subject of fitness, I wonder how many people realise how perfectly trained, and how hard a player really is! I did not myself until my playing days were over."

CUP FINAL TICKETS.

Whenever I meet an old friend or player, he usually greets me with: "Why, you look fit enough to turn out again." So it will be gathered that in appearance I have altered little, but in fitness, compared with my playing days, I am an invalid. I would not last five minutes of an average League game.

If I needed any confirmation of this fact I had it recently when playing with the schoolboys, a part of the coaching scheme at Highbury. After ten minutes, although "practically" walking through the match, I could scarcely drag one leg after the other. Moreover, where my instep had come into contact with the ball it was black and blue.

Probably the explanation is that the muscles have disappeared into flesh. At any rate, my weight is now 11lb. less than it was during my career, according to the scales at the Highbury Stadium.

It is interesting to note here that the demand for Cup Final tickets has been as great as ever. Already the number for disposal to the public has been over-applied for and they can only be obtained now through the clubs and the various county associations.

FOOTBALL CHATTER BY "THE PILGRIM"

INTERESTING ITEMS CLEANED FROM THE VARIOUS CAMPS

LESLIE, the Plymouth Argyle forward, has been to London to consult an eye specialist. He is suffering from an injury due to a loose football lace.

CHESTERFIELD returned £1,200 to unsuccessful applicants for seats at the Aston Villa Cup tie.

"UTILITY" Nicholas, of Derby, has deputised as goalkeeper, right back, and centre half because of injuries to players.

FRED Roberts, of Birmingham, was playing minor football a few weeks ago. He is already hailed as a star.

CANNOCK Town, the Birmingham League club, are in bad straits financially. They have placed all their professional staff upon the open transfer list.

NORMAN Cole, the latest local to make a hit in Southampton's League side, has not yet finished his apprenticeship. He is a fitter.

CLARION Orient have set up a record for Third Division clubs. Two centre forwards on their staff to a week or so ago, shared an aggregate of 500 League goals—Morris (291) and Halliday (209).

JAMES Nelson (Newcastle), Harry Morton (Aston Villa), Vivian Gibbins (Southampton), Harry Race (Notts Forest), George McNeisty (Bristol Rovers), and Ernest Whittam (Chester) all celebrate birthdays together.

TWO seasons ago Plymouth Argyle were thinking of letting Archie Gorman go. It would need a big bid now.

GREENBANK, the Dartford (Kent League) outside left, is a reporter. He refused to turn professional when approached by Bolton.

5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

THIS AIR-BALL PLAY CAN ONLY BE AVOIDED BY PLAYERS POSITIONING THEMSELVES

(By "Saracen").

It is a common complaint of modern football that the ball is too often in the air. There are two reasons for this. One is the lack of attention to the details of positional play and the other to the eagerness of teams to force the pace and score by hook or by crook.

The suggestion that faulty positional play leads to the ball being kicked into the air may seem strange. But suppose, for instance, that a wing half back has the ball at his feet under control and that he takes it forward a few yards. His object is to make a pass to one of his own forwards, but on looking up he finds the man to whom he might send the ball stationery. Moreover they have opponents standing by them. In the circumstances it is not worth while to put them in possession.

What can he do? It is certain that he will be challenged and his only alternative to the risk of being robbed is to get rid of it. So he kicks it haphazardly into the middle and up it goes into the air and he trusts it may go to his own centre forward rather than to an opposing defender.

This blind kick would have been avoided if one of the forwards within reach of him had made it his business to get to position. The half back would then have had the opportunity to get the ball through to him by means of an accurate ground pass.

In regard to the other cause of "air-ball" play, teams are obsessed with the idea of gaining ground quickly and in pursuing this policy they resort to the long pass. This style does not permit of much accuracy. Indeed it amounts to little more than hard kicking. There is little constructive play and there is no real attempt to "make" a goal. Rather by putting the ball in the air and going hard after it do they hope to worry an opponent into a mistake from which a chance to get in a successful shot may come.

In my experience there has been a marked development of this type of football this season and the result has been that the game has lost a good deal of its spectacular charm. It has driven out close and inter-passing movements and in their stead we have had a style of play that has been notable for the hurry and scurry of the players rather than for their science and craft.

CRICKET.

VOLUNTEERS BEAT THE CLUB

LOSERS' POOR BATTING

A weak Hongkong C.C. team was beaten by 73 runs in a friendly cricket match by the Hongkong Volunteers yesterday afternoon.

The Volunteers were given a promising start by E. J. R. Mitchell and C. Finch, but with the exception of 24 from N. A. E. Mackay, the other batsmen were unable to take advantage of the position. Mitchell was not dismissed until he had scored 57, and when he had made 55 Finch retired.

The innings closed at 178. The batsmen who were not put on to bowl until the opening batsmen had severely punished all the other bowlers, conceded 17 runs in his first four overs, including a six, but then had an inspired spell and during his next four overs he took six wickets for three runs.

The Hongkong C.C. were always fighting for runs, although Ricketts and Redmond made something of a stand. Ricketts only made eight, but defended his wicket stubbornly. Just before time for drawing stumps the last Hongkong C.C. wicket fell, the total being 105 runs. Scores:

RAILWAY SMASH IN AMERICA

TWENTY DEAD; FORTY INJURED

New York, Feb. 26. Twenty are dead and forty badly injured as the result of a terrible railway accident near Pittsburgh to-night.

Crashing over a frozen switch while travelling at a high speed, an express train plunged over a viaduct into the street below.

Frightful scenes were witnessed, and the sufferings of the injured were accentuated by the bitterly cold weather.

Firemen with saws, working with the aid of torch lights, cut through one coach to reach an imprisoned passenger.

The engine, tender and several coaches lay on the road, a twisted mass of wreckage, but fortunately, two sleeping cars and the dining car remained on the track.

First reports stated that five had been killed and twenty injured, but as relief workers set about clearing the debris, the death list mounted steadily.

It is now established that at least twenty are dead. Four are in hospital, seriously injured and a similar number were assisted or carried from the scene of the wreck, suffering from minor injuries.—Reuter.

NAVAL BUILDING LAST YEAR

FEWER KEELS LAID FOR WARSHIPS

London, Feb. 27.
The major powers of the world laid down fewer warships in the year ending Feb. 2, than in the year previous, in spite of the tendency to increase expenditure on national defence and the agitation in this direction in United States, France, Italy, Germany and Great Britain.

Fifty-six warships of all classes were laid down by the British Empire, the United States, France, Japan, Italy, Soviet Russia and Germany, during the year, according to official returns.

This number is fewer than in the previous year by 16 vessels. Great Britain is building 24 destroyers and the United States 32; Britain is building nine submarines and the United States and Japan six each, while France is building 16 and Italy no less than 22.

Britain is building ten cruisers and the United States 11, while Japan, in spite of the rumour of big programmes in Tokyo, has only two under construction. France and Italy have six cruisers each in process of construction.

At the present time the Soviet's battle strength on the sea is small, for her naval forces consist of three battleships, six cruisers, two cruiser-mine-layers, 17 destroyers and 16 submarines.—Reuter Special.

Air Force Strengthened

London, Feb. 27.
A substantial increase in the strength of the Royal Air Force at Singapore is being strongly urged by Naval and Air Force officers, according to the Daily Telegraph.

The newspaper states that there is a growing demand among supporters of the Government for immediate additions to the R.A.F. strength. The agitation is for the addition of at least ten squadrons.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI RIOT

POLICE FORCED TO FIRE ON CROWD

Shanghai, Feb. 27.
The Bureau of Public Safety police were forced to fire into a crowd of fighting men, outside the Foreign Settlement limits in Yangtsepoos this afternoon.

Three wharf coolies were seriously injured during the affray. A fight commenced between rival gangs of coolies, who were unloading oil from a steamer. On the police intervening, they suffered the hostility of all combatants.

The police were forced to fire and to call out reinforcements to quell the disturbance.

Two police were badly mauled and dozens of coolies suffered minor injuries.—Our Own Correspondent.

CLEAN FOOTBALL! JOCK SUTHERLAND FAMOUS PITT COACH
ILLEGAL interference with the receiver of a forward pass often results in serious injury to the receiver.
Coaches attempt to instruct their men with the idea that they should play the ball rather than the pass receiver because—
If a defensive man makes a true attempt to bat the ball down and in this way bumps the receiver unintentionally, his actions are seldom defined as interference. However, should he clearly show his interfering actions by remaining on the ground and attempting to prevent the receiver from leaping into the air for a pass by bumping him none too gently, he is guilty of a foul and a serious offense against clean football.
Penalty for this action, as illustrated at left, is possession of the ball by the offensive team at the spot where the foul was committed.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

We all like to get aces and kings because, as a general rule, they are sure trick-winners. But occasionally we find a hand where we must throw away an ace to make our contract.

In today's hand Mrs. Helena Scranton of New York found it necessary to throw away not only her ace of spades, but also her king of spades, to get a coup on the East hand.

Before re-bidding the diamonds, North shows a fit in hearts by supporting the heart bid. However, when Mrs. Scranton in the South showed a stopper in clubs by a bid of three no trump, North felt that there was a good play for a slam.

The Play
West's opening lead was the queen of clubs, which Mrs. Scranton trumped in dummy with the three of hearts. She then returned the ten of hearts, East properly refused to cover and the ten was allowed to ride through to West's singleton king. West returned the jack of clubs, which was trumped in dummy with the six of hearts. The seven of hearts was played back. Mrs. Scranton finessed the nine, which held.

It now looked as though East's queen of hearts was safe, but Mrs. Scranton next played her queen of diamonds and overtook in the dummy with the ace. She played the king of clubs, and now started to play diamonds.

If East had trumped in, all Mrs. Scranton would have found it necessary to do was to have over-trumped, picked up the last trump, and entered the dummy with the queen of spades.

However, East refused to trump, so Mrs. Scranton simply ran off five straight diamond tricks, discarding all her spades, including the ace and king, and now led a spade from dummy.

East, of course, was forced to trump, having nothing but the two hearts left. Mrs. Scranton over-trumped and won the last trick with the high trump, making her contract of six hearts.

Today's Contract Problem
South plays this hand at four spades. West opens the four of hearts, which East wins with the king. If East does not return a heart, a good squeeze play will produce six-odd. Can you work it?

GETS IT

TO STAY ON GOLD

ITALY DENIES ANY POLICY CHANGE

Rome, Feb. 27. Rumours that Italy is contemplating leaving the gold standard are strongly denied by Signor Jung, the Finance Minister, who declares in his own and Premier Mussolini's names, that the Italian Government is determined to maintain the lira anchored to the gold standard, as fixed by the Stabilisation Law of Dec. 21, 1927.—Reuter.

Recent Weakness.

London, Feb. 27. The recent weakness of the lira has given rise to rumours that Italy will follow Czechoslovakia's example, and depreciate the currency.

Sound bankers here point out that the weakness of the lira is seasonal but is aggravated by withdrawals of funds which Italian emigrants in America previously transferred in order to safeguard themselves against a depreciation of the dollar.

The lira, after touching a discount of over three per cent, in relation to the franc is now recovering slightly.

The Financial Times Paris correspondent states that apprehension exists as to the future of the franc and points out that the Treasury, which is obliged to meet maturities of about £20,000,000 before the end of July, relies on the holders of the securities agreeing to renew their bonds. But if the bonds are not renewed, if public expenditure is not drastically cut down and if the budget is not properly balanced, then inflation seems inevitable.

Another great danger is the persistently increasing production costs. French manufacturers are rapidly losing their foreign and overseas markets. High tariffs, quotas, and so on, are likely to result in an increase in the cost of living, and therefore higher wages,

MAXTON'S THREAT.

UNEMPLOYED MARCH TO 10 DOWNING STREET

London, Feb. 27. Notwithstanding the Prime Minister's refusal to receive a deputation of the unemployed marchers who have invaded London, a party of 40 of these visitors, headed by Mr. James Maxton and Mr. John McGovern, Labour members of Parliament, marched to No. 10 Downing Street to-day.

They halted there and demanded to see Mr. MacDonald.

Upon a secretary stating that Mr. MacDonald was not even in the building, Mr. Maxton told him that he regarded the incident as a personal insult and would raise the matter in the House of Commons.

Addressing the deputation of marchers outside the Prime Minister's door, Mr. Maxton dwelt upon the peaceable nature of the steps they had taken hitherto to secure a hearing and redress. But if the Government closed all constitutional doors to them, the unemployed, then there were other doors with which they would have to deal, he threatened.—Reuter.

thus accentuating the difficulties. The paper states that important French producers secretly favour devaluation of the franc, as they are convinced the franc is stabilised too high.—Reuter.

Another Reduction.

New York, Feb. 27. Leading bankers are discussing the question of a further cut in the gold value of the dollar, as commodity prices are not rising as it was anticipated. They would do, but some sections of Wall Street believe that the better way to raise prices would be to cut them, thereby stimulating the demand, which in time would advance prices again.—Reuter.

DIPLOMAT'S DEATH

OGPU OFFICER'S BODY IN CONSULATE

Istanbul, Feb. 27. A first-class sensation has been created in diplomatic and political circles by the death, in mysterious circumstances, of Ivan Michin, 25, Second Secretary to the Soviet Embassy at Ankara.

Michin was found dead on the bathroom of the Soviet Consulate half an hour before he was due to sail for Odessa.

Last week Michin was ordered to return to Moscow by the OGPU for whom he has been working.

One theory is that Michin preferred to kill himself rather than return and another is that he was murdered for refusing to return.

Turkish police are inclined to the belief that he was murdered.—Reuter.

ROTARY CLUB TIFFIN.

SPECIAL FUNCTION PUT OFF TO FRIDAY

The Rotary Club of Hongkong had arranged a "Ladies Day" at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden for to-morrow, to be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Norwood, Minister of the City Temple, London.

As it is now announced that the Tiffin on which Dr. Norwood is travelling from Japan to Australia, will be in port a day later than scheduled time, the tiffin will be held on Friday, March 2, instead.

The directors of the Rotary Club hope that members and their guests will be able to adjust their engagements to attend on the new date, and very much regret the unavoidably short notice of the change.

Dr. Norwood's subject will be "Armaments in the Modern World."

THE AUSTRIAN PUZZLE: VIENNA UNEASINESS

China Likely to Ratify Silver Agreement

DECISION EXPECTED TO-DAY

DR. KUNG ON SILVER PRICES

NOT IMPORTANT TO CHINA

Nanking, Feb. 28.

Dr. H. H. Kung, the Minister of Finance, issued an important statement last evening on the silver situation.

He emphasised that his statement consisted mainly of his personal views, but it is believed that they reflect the Nanking official attitude.

His statement follows: "The Central Political Council is expected to adopt a definite policy on Wednesday dealing with the silver situation, which has been engaging the serious attention of all quarters."

"The silver problem is a very complicated one, and the rise or fall of its price has a certain influence on China's trade vicissitudes."

"Personally, I think that the ratification of the London Silver Agreement, or refusal to ratify, by the Chinese Government, should not depend on the possible effect of a rise in the silver price."

CHINA'S POLICY.

"The only thing China should do is to devise a wise policy for manoeuvring the situation which might be created by the boosting of the silver price by any other nation, to her advantage."

"A rise or a fall in the silver price does not necessarily exercise direct and immediate effects on the foreign trade position of China."

"For example, during the Great War, the silver price was at its climax, but China's exporting position remained high, while China's exports at the present time are continuing on a downward trend, despite the low point to which silver has fallen."

EXPORT INFLUENCES.

"From these particular instances, we can conclude that China's exporting position is mainly determined by the purchasing power of the world in general, although the fluctuations of silver prices somewhat affect China's exports in certain respects and in certain periods."

"The Central Government has completed a careful study of this problem and will apply every possible method to make the best of the situation. An embargo on exports of silver or the taxation of silver exports are only some of the multifarious methods the Government is prepared to apply when it is found necessary."

CANADA TO RATIFY.

It is reported from New York that Canada may shortly be expected to ratify the London Silver Agreement.

CUBA TO COIN SILVER

United States Making a Loan

Washington, Feb. 27. It is expected that the Government will make a loan of several million dollars to Cuba shortly. The loan will be devoted solely to the purpose of purchasing silver in the United States. The exact amount has not been revealed but it is believed that the silver will be coined into Cuban dollars.—Reuter.

RECOGNITION OF MANCHUKUO

German and American Denials

Shanghai, Feb. 28.

The local German Consulate-General has referred a message from Berlin to the Chinese Government stating that the rumour that Germany is considering the recognition of Manchukuo is absolutely groundless.

A similar denial has been obtained from American official circles.—Central News.

ON VERGE OF BREAKDOWN

ANGLO-JAPANESE COTTON TALKS

HIGHLY DELICATE SITUATION

London, Feb. 27.

A highly delicate situation has arisen in the Anglo-Japanese cotton negotiations and the threat of a breakdown before the talks have fairly begun is looming dangerously large.

It was, in fact, stated late this evening that the arrangements for a further meeting between the delegates to-morrow had been postponed until further notice.

The report was denied within an hour, however, the British delegation leaving an official statement declaring that both sides will be present at the Board of Trade to-morrow (Wednesday).

It is admitted by the Lancashire delegates that the situation is extremely delicate although every effort will be made to find a way out.

The difficulties centre around the desire of the Japanese delegation to limit the discussions to special geographical areas. The British delegation insist that unless the whole purpose of the negotiations is to be defeated, worldwide scope is essential for the discussions.—Reuter.

SNOW HAVOC IN NEW YORK

94,000 ENGAGED IN CLEARING

New York, Feb. 27.

It has been decided to add forty-one thousand workers of the Civil Works Administration to the army of snow-clearers, bringing the total to 94,000.

This is unprecedented in the city's history.

The blizzard raged for 36 hours without a break and it will be a considerable time before road communications are again properly established.—Reuter.

Ng Wan-chuen, charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy, this morning, with possession of 1,000 heroin pills at the Tai Hing wharf, was fined $1,000, or in default six months' imprisonment. Revenue Officer Grimmit said the pills were tied round defendant's legs.

LADIES' DAY AT THE RACES

DIANA BAY WINS EASILY

IN DEPRESSING WEATHER

Depressing weather conditions prevailed this morning to mark the opening of the fourth day of the annual race meeting and there was a very small attendance at the outset.

The going was still inclined to be on the heavy side though a fairly good foothold was provided off the rails.

RUSSIANS SHOOT DOWN JAPANESE PLANE

Tokyo, Feb. 28.

It is reported from Chang-chun that a Japanese military plane was shot down by Soviet troops near the confluence of the Amur and Sungari rivers and that the crew was killed. The Japanese military authorities admit the plane was brought down by gunfire but deny that there were any casualties.—Reuter.

A War Office spokesman today confirmed the receipt of official reports stating that Soviet military aeroplanes twice crossed the Korean border, on February 23 and February 25.—Reuter.

RUSSO-JAPANESE CRISIS

There are conflicting reports in regard to the shooting down of a Japanese aeroplane by Soviet troops, some papers reporting that all aboard were killed and others that there were no casualties.

The newspaper Jiji reports that Mr. Ota, the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow, has been instructed to file a strong protest concerning the crossing of the Korean frontier by Soviet planes.—Reuter.

ARMY READY FOR EMERGENCIES

RUMOURS OF HAPSBURG RESTORATION

ULTIMATUM EXPIRY

VIENNA, FEB. 28.

EVENTS IN AUSTRIA ARE BEING WATCHED WITH THE CLOSEST ANXIETY. THE AIR IS FULL OF RUMOURS AND AGAIN THERE ARE REPORTS OF FIGHTING ON THE AUSTRO GERMAN FRONTIER.

These rumours of "incidents" on the border are baseless, according to Dr. Dollfuss, who granted an interview to Reuter last night.

The Chancellor insisted that all was quiet in all parts of Austria. Precautions have been taken to prevent any incident on the German border.

He emphasised that no movement of troops has been ordered to the Czechoslovakian frontier. The Government had merely ordered a movement of Auxiliary Corps formations in Upper Austria to maintain public security.—Reuter.

RESTORATION RUMOURS

Story of Mysterious Communications

Vienna, Feb. 27.

The situation is uneasy owing to the expiry at noon to-morrow of Herr Habicht's ultimatum to Austria.

Fears of foreign intervention are complicated by reports of mysterious communications between Vienna and the chateau near Brussels which is the home of the Archduke Otto.

There has been unusual activity at Otto's castle recently, but an official statement has been issued there declaring that the youthful Archduke will not go to Austria. It is authoritatively stated in Paris that the French Government is strongly opposed to the restoration of the Hapsburgs, as is also the Czechoslovakian Government.—Reuter.

ITALIAN ARMY READY

But Not Expecting Need For Action

Rome, Feb. 27.

It is understood that the only recent reinforcement of the Italian frontier has been the movement of eight thousand troops to Padua, ready to be rushed to the Austrian frontier in time for any fighting in Vienna.

The Italian army, however, is fully prepared to cope with any situation that may arise, although the authorities do not envisage the necessity for any action.—Reuter.

MARYSE HILTZ DEPARTS

Mlle. Hiltz intends attempting a non-stop flight, and if successful she should arrive in Shanghai at about 2.30 this afternoon.

THE CORPORATIVE STATE

Experiment Begun in Austrian Tyrol

Vienna, Feb. 27.

A move towards the creation of a Corporative State has been made in the Tyrol, where the Landtag (or local parliament) has voluntarily dissolved and delegated its functions to the local governor. The Governor plans to take three Heimwehr representatives into the local government and then to nominate a so-called Advisory Committee of twelve members, consisting of workers, traders, professional men and clergy on a gild basis.

The reorganised "government" will function temporarily, pending the reconstruction of all local governments on a gild basis as demanded by the Heimwehr.—Reuter.

AN OUTBREAK OF MENINGITIS

EIGHTEEN CASES LAST WEEK

FIVE MORE ON MONDAY

Hongkong is at present experiencing an outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis. During last week, eighteen cases, with six deaths, were notified, ten of the cases, being from Kowloon, four from Victoria and the other four from the New Territories.

Five further cases were reported on Monday, two each from Kowloon and the New Territories, and the other from Victoria.

There were also nine cases (eight deaths) from small-pox last week, five of diphtheria (three fatal), and one each of paratyphoid fever and rabies (animal). Fifty-seven deaths occurred from tuberculosis.

Monday's returns include two cases each of small-pox, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

Navy Day celebrations during the week-end March 17-18.

The naval authorities have decided to give another searchlight display during the Saturday evening, from all warships in harbour, on an even bigger scale than that of Navy Day.

On the Sunday two ships will be open for view to the public.

Dr. Gombos, Hungarian Premier, with Dr. Dollfuss, Austria's Chancellor. They are to visit Rome in connexion with the Italian economic scheme.

THE ITALIAN PLAN

AN ECONOMIC ALLIANCE

THREE-POWER PARLEY IN ROME

Rome, Feb. 27.

Great importance is attached to a meeting which has been arranged between Signor Mussolini and the leaders of the Austrian and Hungarian Governments to take place at Rome shortly.

This conference now emerges as the probable explanation of Signor Savitich's recent "mystery tour."

Dr. Dollfuss and Dr. Gombos will pay a three-day visit to Rome about March 12 to confer with Mussolini in regard to the Italian scheme for an economic settlement between the Danubian countries, providing for reciprocal tariff concessions by the three countries and an outlet to the Adriatic for Austria and Hungary via Trieste and Fiume.

NO POLITICAL BLOC.

Italian circles deny that there is any question of a formal political bloc between the three countries on the lines of the Little Entente. They emphasise that the cooperation contemplated will be predominantly economic and that the Italian Plan is not directed against any other nation.

Germany and the Little Entente will benefit, it is insisted, as well as Austria, Hungary and Italy.—Reuter.

RUSH OF CRITICS TO WASHINGTON

N.R.A. INVITATION ACCEPTED

Washington, Feb. 27.

Hundreds of critics of the National Recovery Administration have responded to the invitation of General Hugh Johnson to air their views at a series of public meetings which are expected to last until March 5 and which are being broadcast countrywide.—Reuter.

FRENCH BUDGET APPROVED

MINOR AMENDMENTS IN SENATE

Paris, Feb. 27.

After approving several amendments, the Senate to-night voted the whole of the Budget Bill by 295 votes to 13.

The Bill will now be returned to the Chamber for discussion regarding the amendments. No difficulty is expected to experience in completing the passage.—Reuter.

Forgotten Sweetheart by MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XX

A woman representing the Travellers' Aid and wearing the official badge of that organization approached Pat as she entered the New York terminal. "Are you Pat Waring from Memphis?" the woman asked. "I have a telegram for her."

Pat's heart leaped, but she was a clever little actress and her nervousness was not apparent. She glanced indifferently at the telegram and shook her head. "My name is Rosa Lee," she said pleasantly.

The woman hesitated, still eyeing Pat doubtfully.

"There was another blond girl in my car," Pat said easily. "Just about my size, too." She looked back and saw that the blond girl who had sat near her was examining her luggage.

"Thank you," said the Travellers' Aid representative and moved on. Pat started off calmly but quickened her steps a moment later.

"I want a taxi in a hurry," she told the red cap. She breathed a sigh of relief a moment later when she was spinning along the streets in the cab. So the family had sent a wire, no doubt pleading with her to come back! Well, she wouldn't go back. If they only knew what torture it had been! Already she was feeling better, as though she had left the old Pat behind and had assumed a new identity. She would write to-night telling her mother not to worry, but she would not give them her address until they became accustomed to the idea of her being away, more confident that she could take care of herself.

There was no lonelier, more troubled girl in all New York than Joan Waring when she moved along with the crowd through the gates into the big railway station. Searching the lobby, she saw the Travellers' Aid desk, identifying it by the lighted globes, the two hemispheres which symbolize the agency's far-reaching service.

Joan spoke to the alert, pleasant-faced woman at the desk. "I'm Joan Waring from Memphis. I wired about my sister—"

"Yes, Miss Waring. We received the telegram and we believed we had found your sister but—"

"She isn't here," Joan cried.

"We stopped a girl who answered the description but she said she was not Pat Waring. Perhaps we should have held her, but she talked so naturally and said there was another blond girl in the same coach. This other girl's relatives appeared while Miss Bell was questioning her."

"What was the first girl like?" Joan asked unhappily.

The woman began a careful description of Pat's dark blue suit, curly blond hair, and small hat. Even before she mentioned the heavy silver locket with flat links, Joan was nodding miserably. Tears rolled unheeded down her cheeks.

"That was Pat," she said. "She has lots of poise for her age but she's really inexperienced. I'm so frightened, so afraid of what may happen—"

"Nothing will happen," the older woman reassured her. "From Miss Bell's description, I feel sure your sister will take very good care of herself. She has funds?"

"She could take care of herself for a month or six weeks on what she has."

The brisk, matter-of-fact, cheerful voice helped, but Joan knew that as soon as she was alone again the terrible doubts lurking in her mind would spring out to terrify her once more.

"Shouldn't I go to the police?" she asked.

"That might be very embarrassing for your sister. Why don't you try the employment agencies first—the easily accessible ones where you'd be likely to go if you were looking for work? That's the place where you'll probably find her. I'll give you a list of addresses."

While she was writing, the Travellers' Aid representative glanced at Joan's white, anxious face and said kindly, "You look very tired, my dear. We could make you comfortable in our rooms downtown until you decide where you want to stay."

"Thank you. You are very kind but I think I'd better get settled right away."

"There's a very nice woman's hotel I can send you to. It's not expensive and it's near the heart of the city," the woman wrote down the address and handed the slip of paper to Joan.

A short while later Joan was established in a decorous little room, fastidiously neat, with ruffled curtains at the window to add a home-like touch. But she did not feel at home. She was unutterably lonely and discouraged and heart-sick.

She went to the window and looked out, but turned away with a shudder. Pat was so young to be alone in this great, bewildering place, spread like an enormous, glittering net about her. Pat was alone here to-night, just as Joan was. Poor little brave, unhappy Pat!

Joan's head was throbbing. She decided to go to bed. To-morrow she would begin her search for Pat, the search which must succeed soon! Joan got into bed, turning her face against the pillow which was soon wet with tears.

Two weeks of loneliness, of small bills mounting to large ones. Two weeks of stifled fears and determined courage. Joan became conscious of commiserating glances when she entered the hotel lobby. She passed through the lobby on her way to the street, through it again to go to her room. The process seemed mechanical. It was so exactly the same every day.

She had visited all the employment agencies on the list given her by the Travellers' Aid representative and many others, as well. She had interviewed personnel managers in department stores. She had searched crowds on the streets until her eyes ached, her heart leaping at the sight of every slender, blond girl who for a moment looked like Pat.

She had inserted a message in the classified columns of a morning and evening newspaper, begging Pat to call her. She had tried every means she could think of to find her sister, every means that had been suggested to her, and she had failed.

Joan's face was thin and worn from strain, worry and weariness. One day at noon she sat in a small restaurant on Broadway, eating a frugal meal of soup and crackers and milk. Her thoughts were running their troubled course. Her funds were very low. Unless she could find work she must return home soon. Counting pennies and practicing petty economies would not help much longer.

"I can't leave without Pat!" Joan thought desperately. "I'll stand in the bread line first!"

Two girls, attractive, self-assured, with the unmistakable stamp of those who earn their own way in the world, sat down at the table. Their animated chatter flowed about Joan. It was Saturday afternoon and the girls were planning to attend a movie.

"Have you seen Norma Shearer at the Capitol?" one of them asked, turning to Joan. "She's swell!"

Joan shook her head. "I've been too busy to see any shows lately." Then on impulse, she asked, "Do you know where I could get a job?"

Both girls stared. "You've got to hustle to grab a job these days," one of them volunteered. "You need a 'never-take-no' look in your eyes. What can you do?"

"I can sing," Joan answered, wondering a little that she felt no resentment at the other's casual manner. She added, "I have coached students preparing for college."

"Heavens!" The exclamation spoke volumes. "Well," the other girl went on, "if you land a job it won't be coaching. Maybe, though, you could be a model. That's what I do—at Himmels' store. And sometimes I pose for soap advertisements. My face isn't my fortune but my arm holding a snow white cake of soap—well, you wouldn't believe it!"

"I don't know," said Joan hesitantly, "if I could do anything like that—"

"Aren't sold on the proposition, are you? Well, you have the right to suit yourself. If you ever want to talk your troubles over, call me up." She drew a card from her purse and scribbled across it.

Joan took the card and read, "Kate Jones, Woodmere Apartments," followed by a telephone number. She thanked the stranger who said, "Forget it! You'd make a swell model. If luck runs away from you, call me."

A week later, frightened by her fast diminishing funds and with the stalling fear that she must leave New York without finding

Both girls stared. "You've got to hustle to grab a job these days," one of them volunteered. "You need a 'never-take-no' look in your eyes. What can you do?"

"I can sing," Joan answered, wondering a little that she felt no resentment at the other's casual manner. She added, "I have coached students preparing for college."

"Heavens!" The exclamation spoke volumes. "Well," the other girl went on, "if you land a job it won't be coaching. Maybe, though, you could be a model. That's what I do—at Himmels' store. And sometimes I pose for soap advertisements. My face isn't my fortune but my arm holding a snow white cake of soap—well, you wouldn't believe it!"

"I don't know," said Joan hesitantly, "if I could do anything like that—"

"Aren't sold on the proposition, are you? Well, you have the right to suit yourself. If you ever want to talk your troubles over, call me up." She drew a card from her purse and scribbled across it.

Joan took the card and read, "Kate Jones, Woodmere Apartments," followed by a telephone number. She thanked the stranger who said, "Forget it! You'd make a swell model. If luck runs away from you, call me."

SOVIET'S WARNING TO JAPANESE

Moscow, Feb. 27.

The official Soviet press today warns Japan that future negotiations for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway must be conducted on a sincere and realistic basis. The Soviet Union, it is said, does not intend to be made a party to a stage play and will resist all attempts to confiscate the railroad or to interfere with its operations.

Levesta states: "The external and internal situation in Japan on the one side and the decisiveness of the Soviet policy on the other, have helped Japanese to understand that it is impossible to impose their will by methods of violence on a great power like Soviet Russia."

The Soviet Union believes that if its frontiers are respected and its interests not hampered, all dubious questions between the Soviet and Japan can be solved.

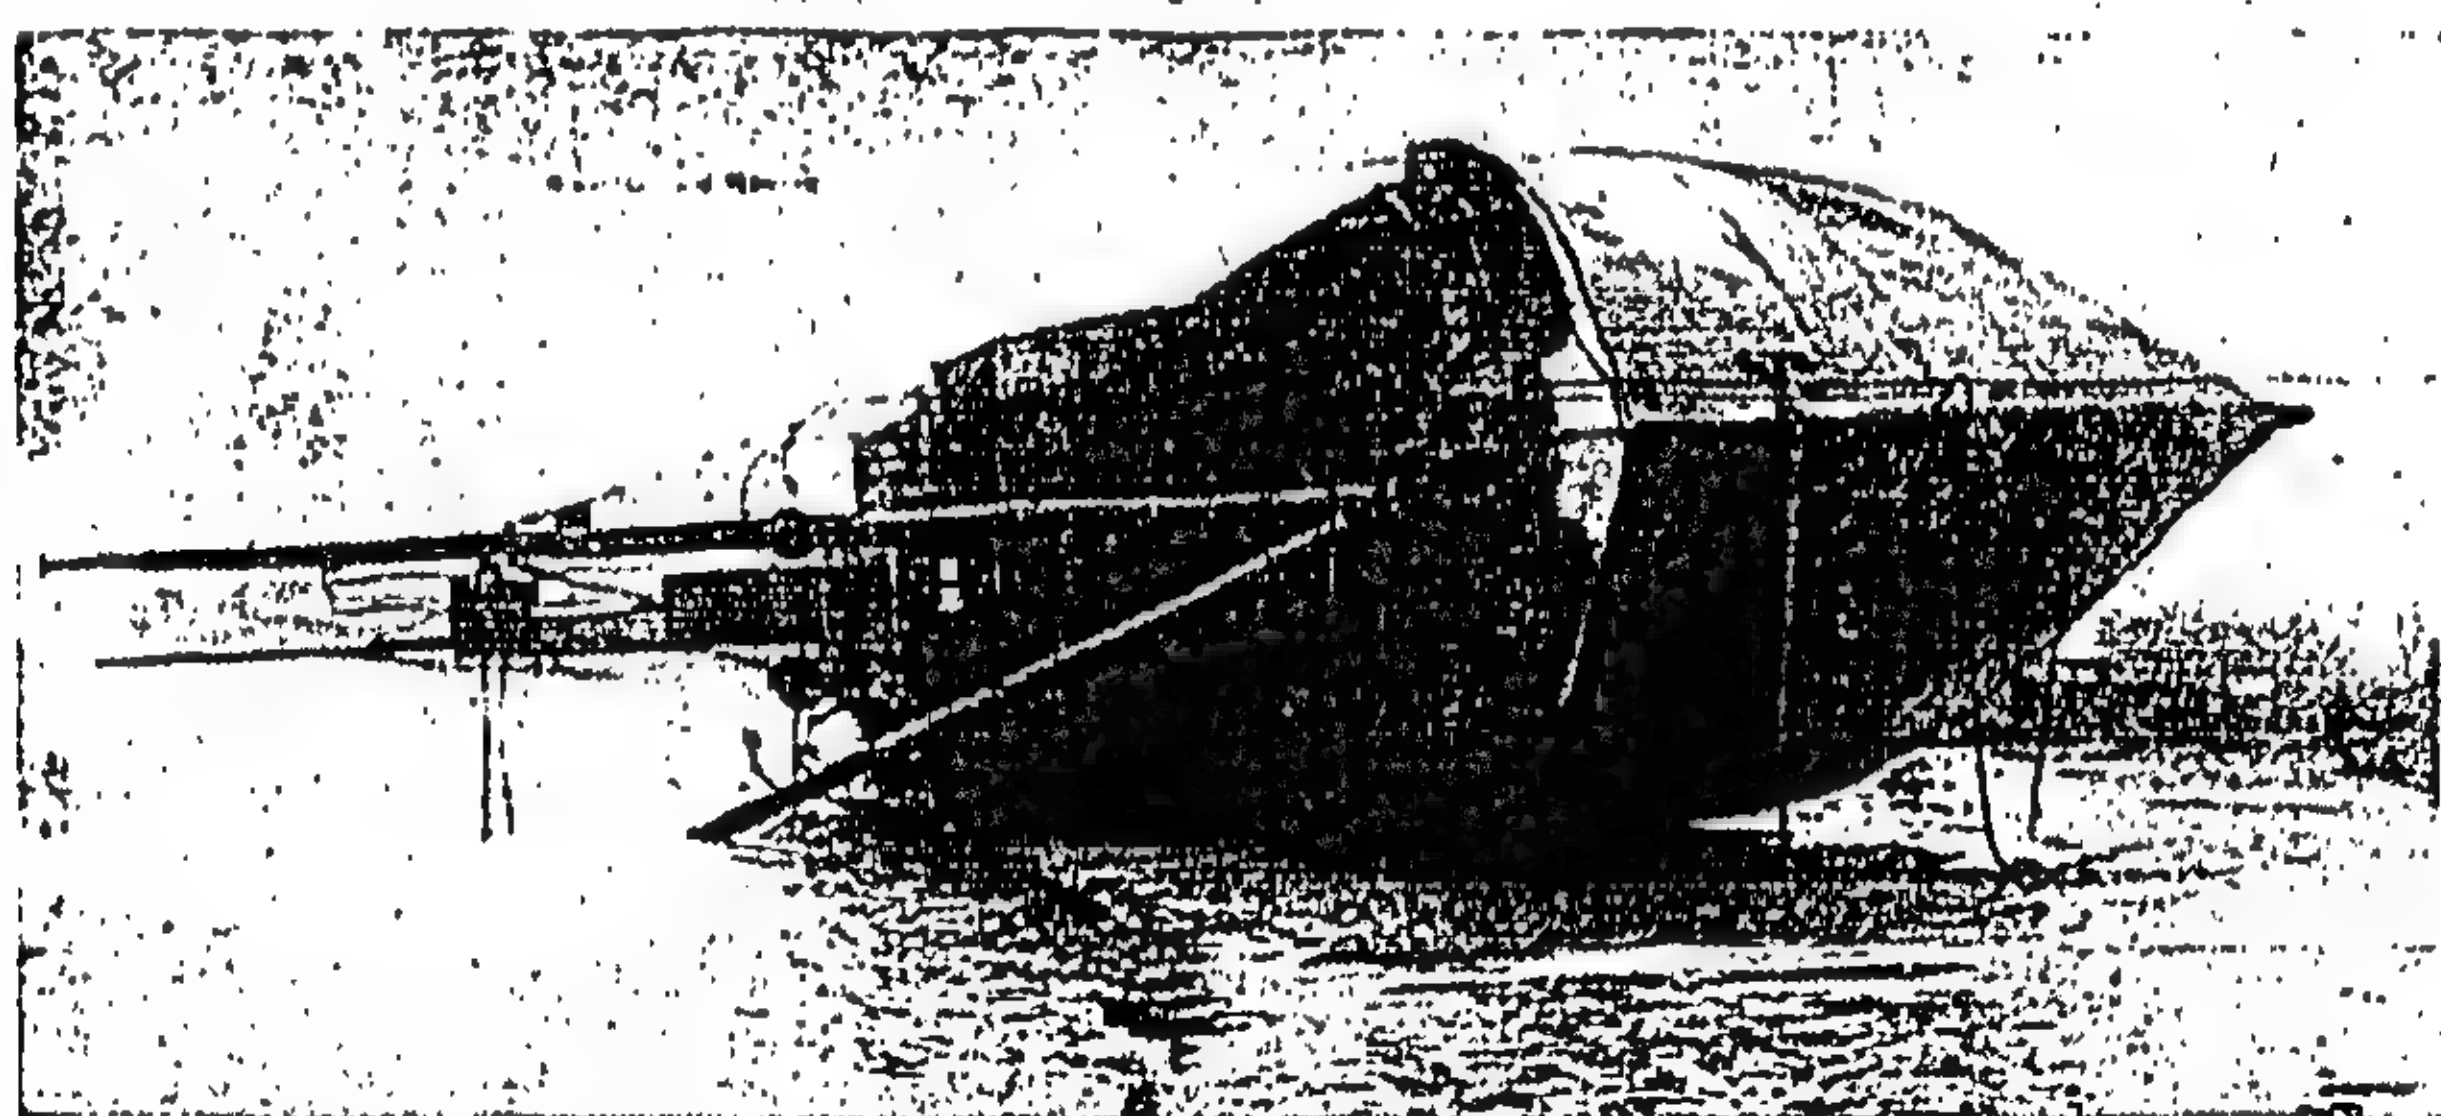

Pravda declares that those handling the negotiations in Tokyo, Harbin or Changchun "must remember any attempt to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway or interfere with its operation will meet with decisive resistance from the side of the Soviet Union."—United Press.

Pat, Joan took up the telephone and called the number Kate Jones had given her.

DRESS WEAR

The details of evening wear... the shape and texture of the Summit skirt, the "set" of the Summit collar, the correct length of the bow-tie, the cut of a white waistcoat... are "trifles that make perfection."

When you buy your evening wear from Mackintosh's you have the complete assurance that every little point has been carefully considered by experts and that everything is exactly correct and in accordance with the decrees of the West End of London.

Clean Within & Without! The Perfectly Healthy Child

Chubby, rosy cheeks and a bright smiling face should be the heritage of every child, and if these are lacking there must be a reason—and a remedy too!

A simple well-tried method of ensuring these signs of good health is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets whenever the little one is ailing.

Mildly laxative, these Tablets keep the infantile intestinal tract clear and clean, which is the first essential for perfect health. Besides,

BABY'S OWN TABLETS correct wind and colic, aid digestion, allay feverishness, make teething easy, expel worms, and strengthen the little one's resistance to colds. On account of their pleasant taste there is never any fuss over administering Baby's Own Tablets, as is so often the case when nauseating medicines such as Castor Oil are given.

Keep a vial always in the home—every chemist sells them, and your children will thrive when minor ailments which beset them are promptly corrected by the use of Baby's Own Tablets.

ON AN ENGLISH FARM

Rich pasturage is essential to dairy produce, and it is in England with its excellent grazing that "Ideal" Milk is prepared.

From selected herds of cows are obtained milk supplies unsurpassable for quality and cleanliness; then a most rigid and scientific control is exercised. This is not relaxed from the time the cows are milked until the finished product is packed in hermetically sealed tins.

Only by such means can "Ideal" Milk be guaranteed to reach you so fresh and pure.

BRITAIN'S STEADY PROGRESS

Not only is British trade on the up-grade, but the improvement noteworthy in recent months has come to stay. That is the conclusion reached by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who, from his position as Chancellor of the Exchequer and by reason of his close contact with trading interests, is able to speak with some authority on the subject. The belief is also evidently held by our manufacturers, who are so encouraged by prospects that they feel they can justifiably expand their plant and equipment. The steady upward trend has been manifest for some time now, so much so that in the iron and steel industries there has been so much activity that in some directions difficulty has been experienced in fulfilling requirements of consumers. The position in the coal-mining areas is also improving, whilst ship-building is taking a turn for the better. Engineering, metal goods, the motor industry and distributive trades have also been reporting better conditions, and there has been a marked improvement in the pottery industry. The effect of this activity is seen in a decided increase in the number of people actually in employment. In recent months this increase has been most marked, a fact which provides the best possible evidence of the revival of trade activity. There is, of course, a tremendous amount of leeway to be made up, but it is reassuring to feel that the trend is at any rate in the right direction. The world position is still far from being composed, and the innumerable barriers to expansion provided by tariff walls and other obstructions make the task of complete recovery extremely difficult. Yet, in spite of these obstacles, British business men are adapting themselves to the circumstances in a manner which proves that the old spirit of quiet determination is still very much alive. Neither in the realm of commerce nor of finance has Britain plunged into experiments of doubtful value. Her position to-day is the result of wise and patient action along sound lines. The measure of progress already recorded is all the more satisfying when we bear in mind the immensity of the difficulties which have had to be faced. It is, in fact, little short of miraculous that at a time when so many other nations are still in the depths of depression, Britain should be showing definite signs of permanent recovery.

NOTES OF THE DAY

EUROPEAN MAZE

The European political tangle is not rendered less of a maze by the hints of better success attending Germany's diplomatic activities. A correct appraisal of the situation is, indeed, more difficult than ever. The precise significance of all the moves in the game may not appear until much later in the day, but one thing is clear, namely, that Austria's leaders are more readily disposed to listen to the voice of Berlin. No definite statement has been forthcoming from either Berlin or Vienna, but there is plenty of circumstantial justification for the belief, including the statement from Dr. Dollfuss's office declaring that no trouble is expected to-day when, at noon, Herr Habicht's ultimatum expires.

THE INFERENCE

The inference appears to be obvious. No trouble is expected because the occasion for quarrel has been removed or negotiations to that end are proceeding satisfactorily. An agreement, according to one source, is expected in the next few days but what will be the end of it all, no one can foresee. Such a development, following so closely in the wake of Signor Savitch's trip to Vienna and Budapest, would be surprising. It may mean peace between Austria and Germany. But it would increase the alarms and anxieties in Rome, and Paris, not to mention London.

MUSSOLINI'S PLANS

That Signor Mussolini's instructions to Signor Savitch had nothing to do with Austria's change of front is quite certain. If Hitler satisfies Major Fey, the Italian reaction will be far from favourable. Signor Mussolini has other ideas and other plans and believes that Dr. Dollfuss is with him. The Austrian Chancellor may, however, find himself caught up by a strong current and must go with the stream. A year in office has made him a realist. If the Heimwehr goes Nazi he must follow or quit.

GERMANY AND PRAGUE

Equally interesting are the German overtures to Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benes may well wonder which way to turn. A close friendship between Austria and Germany, hemming his country in between two Nazi States, will not be viewed by the Czech Foreign Minister with any complacency. And the Italian alternative, an Italo-Austro-Hungarian alliance, is politically almost as displeasing, thrusting, as it does, a wedge between the Little Entente Powers. Germany's Non-Aggression Pact offer cannot lightly be dismissed in these circumstances and there would be no hesitation if other considerations did not enter into the question. But France looms very large and M. Benes is not likely to be stampeded into any move that threatens Czechoslovakia relations with France. Herr Hitler has weaned—Poland away from French influence. Prague offers a much more difficult proposition.

OPEN-BOOK EXAMINATIONS

From the University of Chicago comes the announcement that students in the "humanities" course will be allowed to bring their textbooks, notes and what ever other reference material they wish when they take their final examinations next June. The questions will be designed not merely to test the student's knowledge of facts but his ability to find and correlate them and draw conclusions therefrom. The idea seems meritorious. It much more nearly approximates the ordinary conditions in which the students will do his later work and apply his intellectual equipment. There he would be considered slipshod in his methods if he wasted time trying to remember uncertainly what can be checked with certainty in reference manuals. Of course, a certain amount of ready information is necessary for quickness in every vocation or avocation, but this will implant itself with use.

THE "CARTWHEEL" RETURNS

Manufacturers in Illinois were responsible for an interesting experiment a week or two ago when they met their entire weekly payroll with silver dollars. Instead of getting envelopes containing banknotes, the workers got little canvas sacks filled with dollars—heavy, clinking, and somehow exceedingly satisfying to handle. The step was taken, it is explained, to popularise silver currency and to bring more pressure on the administration in its silver policy. So far as it went it was a good idea. There is something solid and comforting about the feeling of a silver dollar. It feels like more money than a dollar bill, for some reason; it rings in an authoritative manner when thrown down on a counter. Obviously if silver can be made more popular as a medium of exchange in the United States and other parts of the world, there would be little need for artificial price stimulation.

REAL LIFE JEKYLLS AND HYDES

By BERNARD FALK

THOUGH the strange detail makes a fantastic picture in our minds, we should not be too much surprised by the dual life led by "Arthur Leon Castledale," dead in a motor-car crash in London, who was a Cambridge water polo player and a supposed wealthy man about town by night—in stark truth, an adventurer and a criminal.

In all great cities there are to be found people masquerading as the opposites to their real selves. Sometimes the deception has an innocent purpose, and no one is imposed upon but the masqueraders, which is as well.

There are cases, known to most of us, where an attempt is made to escape from the unrelieved monotony of a humdrum existence; in short, to find, in an assumed pose, the thrill and excitement unhappily lacking in the normal, daily round.

The world has many Cinderellas to whose care-haunted natures it is, occasionally, a blessed safety-valve to behave as though they believed the fairy-tale Prince were actually on his way. If none also be named, why should we harshly condemn these imagined golden hours, when castles in the air seem to stretch to earth?

Alas! that what is begun with no ulterior object in view, and no evil in contemplation, should, from time to time, and miserably and disastrously in war on society.

Then mads pose fraudulently as mistresses; "fake" heiresses to mythical thousands are born of once innocently-dreaming work-girls; and, sad that it should be so, clerks who at the seaside affect the manner of lords of creation, finish up at the Old Bailey.

When they started out in life they had not meant to be criminals. Vanity, that grew to be an overmastering passion, proved their undoing. They sought, of pleasing fancies, pure phantasms of the mind, to make concrete realities. Without the means to command, they essayed to live, in practice, the kind of life of which they had fondly dreamt. They were weak-willed people who, as a famous London magistrate remarked to me, just before the war, persuaded themselves that wishing was a reasonable excuse for taking.

Not infrequently it will happen that a genuine duality of nature is present to account for startling contradictions in a man's conduct. Dr. Jekyll, honourable gentleman and philanthropist, who, by means of a drug, could be transformed into Mr. Hyde, the personification of evil, was a creature of Robert Louis Stevenson's dreaming brain. Yet what was there in the novelist's phantasy that had been based on sleeping vision, to exceed in actual wonder the astonishing dual personality of Francis Villon? Think of him, one part thief and murderous ruffian, other part marvellous poet; who for a month should play with consummate ease the gentleman in some princely castle in Blois, and the next month be on the road, joyously consorting with beggars and vagabonds! There is your Jekyll and Hyde in real life, without need of novelist's magic drug to explain the miracle of change from rogue to gentleman of genius, and vice-versa.

In my early days in London more extravagant form of double life was led than by a Dickensian character, whose ambition was to live at the rate of £10,000 a year. Having been left only £1,000 a year, he arranged his affairs as follows: Eleven months in the year he stayed at one of the Rowton Houses, permitting himself an expenditure of two or three shillings a day, and the remaining month he moved into the most expensive suite at a fashionable West End hotel—to enjoy the luxurious state of a millionaire.

Thirty days out of the three hundred and sixty-five he dined off Dover sole, caviare, roast chicken and the finest dishes procurable; the other three hundred and thirty-five days he fed meagrely on the staple foods of the very poor—cheese, herrings, starchy bacon, etc.

Such extremes of luxury and discomfort were the price this man oddly gladly paid to be treated as a millionaire for a few passing days each year. Yet in whatever role he figured, whether the Rowton House lodger of the long spring, summer and autumn months, or the honoured "millionaire" hotel guest of the one June month (the London season), he conducted himself as to the manner born. He might expressly have been cut out for his incredible double life.

Discussing the strange fellow with the hotel manager who had pledged me to secrecy, I asked myself whether the spirit of J.M.W. Turner, the most famous landscape painter, had not, by some magical means, passed into him, for in the reverse sense that great man was inclined to almost the same kind of eccentric behaviour. Though he had a fortune rapidly mounting towards £150,000, Turner loved to take nocturnal rambles in Limehouse and Wapping, and found pleasure in the people met in the lowliest side streets.

In the last phase of his life, when his official address was Queen Anne-street, he developed a mania for disappearing. For days at a time he vanished, without venturing to offer the slightest explanation for his absences. When his friends pressed him to disclose his new retreat he put them off with all sorts of subterfuges and adroit evasions. Finally a letter found in an old coat gave his housekeeper the necessary clue, and she tracked him down. He had taken a house at Chelsea, near Cromorne Gardens. There Turner, the greatest landscape painter in England, if not in the world, had become Admiral Booth—or, in moments of familiarity, "Pug" Booth.

Mild in comparison is the dissimulation of Haroun al Raschid, the famous Caliph of the Arabian Nights, who, indistinguishable from an ordinary citizen, would wander unrecognised about the streets of Bagdad, in order to hear what the common people were saying.

Perhaps for a case to match that of Turner's we must fall back on the instance of the Scottish king who, weary of his crown, and the heavy responsibilities of a

The Very Idea!

ALWAYS LOOK A HORSE IN THE FACE

By Eddie Kelly, Horse Follower

Have you joined the Back to the Horse Movement? In other words, how much did you lose at Happy Valley yesterday?

What we'd like to see is something original at the races. People are getting tired of the same old thing year after year, going out in taxis, watching the same old horses lose their same old money, and coming home in tram-cars.

Let's have a few innovations. For instance, as soon as a race-goer enters the gate, he should be presented with a toy balloon and carnival cap. Prizes could be given for the best fancy dress, costumes, with special prizes for best impersonation of successful punter.

A better innovation would be to hand jockeys who don't come in first, second or third over the fence to punters. This arrangement could also be made to apply to the starter who raised the tape when the hot favourite was facing in the opposite direction.

As the annual races are so well patronised by ladies, a number of huge mat-sheds should be erected to park them in. This would prevent them from cramping betting arrangements.

Pass-out checks should be issued at the tiffin interval, in order to enable race-goers living in Kowloon to go home, have tiffin, mow the lawn, do odd jobs around the house, dress again, bite finger-nails and return to the course long before the official tiffin party had gulped down its frankfurter and beer.

To save innocent men from persecution, Ladies' Enquiry Offices should be established throughout the course. Ladies wishing to know "What Price Glory?" etcetera, would then have to apply to their own offices, where the attendants can be relieved from their exacting duties every five minutes.

In conclusion, there should be a Suggestion Box at each entrance.

No more than one suggestion should, however, be accepted from each punter as to what should happen to the rank outsider that beats the favourite in the last race.

HORSEFEATHERS

We refuse to mention names, but here is the story about the local racehorse owner who told off his chemist.

"Wattinell," he boomed, "wattinell's the idea. When I ask for embrocation for a pony's legs I want embrocation—not lavender water, like the last bottle you sold me. I rubbed it on my griffin the day before yesterday, and over since the—has done nothing but look at herself in the water trough and sigh."

A NEW COMPETITION

Well, children, ever since we saw that Film Competition in a local newspaper we have become competitive all over. So we have prepared a teeny weeny film competition all for yourselves. All you have to do is to supply the missing letters in these film players' names—

R*M*N N*V*RO
GR*T* G*RB*
OWN* NORES

Just in case it was too difficult, here is the solution: Ramon Novarro, Greta Garbo, Kay Francis, Owen Nores. And if any of you little squibs complain that the last name is spelt wrongly, all we can say is that even at your age you should know that there is an O-in Nares.

LOCH NESS

Dogberry disputes Nathaniel Gubbins' claim:

Funny that only one journalist and that journalist me—should hold the secret of Loch Ness, he says.

The "monster" is none other (as we say in the children's magazines)—is none other than Col. D.H.L.*w*r*nce, the uncrowned King of Arnie. He is doing "hush-hush" work for the Government, planning sites for aeroplane hangars.

A self-sacrificing piece of work, especially when the Loch freezes. My interview with the "Monster" was necessarily a guarded one. In accordance with War Office instructions (handed to me, at a West End restaurant, in the form of a potato rissole) I visited the Loch disguised as a ticket-inspector.

After giving the password, the head of Col. L*w*r*nce appeared cautiously above the surface. I then set up a red and green Veroy light, in accordance with instructions.

"Is that Colonel L*w*r*nce?" I now inquired in a hoarse whisper.

"No," replied the "Monster." "Are you Shaw?" said I.

There was a cackle of girlish laughter and the "Monster" disappeared below the surface.

"Seriously, Emil, when can you drop out to the house and teach my wife something about cooking?"

PASSE A BONUS AMENDMENT

WHITE HOUSE VETO CERTAIN

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Feb. 27. A stir has been caused in political circles by the action of the Senate in passing the Independent Offices Bill with the inclusion of important amendments, restoring more than $354,000,000 of war veterans' benefits, which were cut in last year's economy act.

Administration leaders declared that President Roosevelt would refuse to accept the Bill in its present form and would veto the Bill as a result of the bonus amendments.

In the meantime, the Senate has defeated the proposal for the making of a cash payment of $2,400,000,000 in return for the Bonus certificates.—United Press.

Reuter adds that the action of the Senate in approving the Bonus amendment to the Independent Offices Bill is in flat defiance of the Administration's economy plans.

The amendment involves the immediate provision of $55,000,000 for the benefit of 20,000 veterans of the war whose disabilities were presumed to be of service origin, but who were removed from the rolls under the Economy Act.

BRITISH CONSULAR CHANGE

NEW APPOINTMENT TO DANZIG

London, Feb. 27. It was stated at the Foreign Office to-day that the status of the consular post at Danzig having been raised to that of Consulate General, Mr. L. M. Mr. Robinson's place at Amsterdam will be taken by Mr. Buchanan, formerly Consul at Baltimore.—British Wireless.

L. C. C. BUDGET PRESENTED

REDUCTION OF 2D. IN RATES

London, Feb. 27. Estimates for the coming year were presented at the London County Council meeting to-day. London's budget anticipates an expenditure during the coming financial year of over $29½ million, a reduction of $500,000 on last year's figure. Several millions are allotted to housing, mainly slum clearance and improvements. There is a reduction of 2d. in the rates, to 6½ in the £.—British Wireless.

BRITISH FINANCE FIGURES

SLIGHT DECLINE IN REVENUE

London, Feb. 27. The latest Treasury returns show that ordinary revenue for the current year up to 24th February amounted to $31,765,084. At the corresponding date of last year the amount stood at $33,749,452.

Ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled $30,392,255 as compared with $34,222,340 at the corresponding date last year.—British Wireless.

BRIGHT SHOW AT QUEEN'S

REVUE'S CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

Several new features were introduced by the "Hello Hongkong" Revue yesterday evening and the programme was much more pleasing than on the first three nights. Miss Charlotte Siegrist received a great ovation from the large house at the conclusion of each of her songs, the installation of a microphone enabling her to put over her wonderful voice which on the first night was rather lost to the back seats.

Robert Rhodes again delighted the audience with his vigorous baritone voice, and drew from them hearty applause.

Perhaps the most daring item of the colourful programme was a fan dance executed by Laverne Lambert.

A little stage finish would make the show almost impossible to criticise, but, as it is, "Hello Hongkong" is well worth seeing. The final performances will be given to-night, and to-morrow evenings, with a matinee to-morrow.

LONDON HUNGER MARCHERS

MR. MCGOVERN'S DEMAND

DISCUSSION IN COMMONS

London, Feb. 27. Mr. Maxton's protest on the steps of No. 10, Downing Street, against the refusal of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald to receive a deputation from the hunger-marchers, was followed up by agitation in the House of Commons.

When Mr. McGovern, the Glasgow extremist, asked the Prime Minister this afternoon that time should be given to discuss a proposal that representatives of the unemployed marchers should be received at the bar of House, Mr. MacDonald replied that the whole problem of unemployment was engaging the constant attention of the Government.

He added that the Bill now before Parliament was designed to make possible an improvement in the lot of those who were unfortunately unemployed. "The views of all sections of the people," he went on, "are made known in this House through their elected representatives, and in the opinion of the Government no advantage would be gained by according to the honourable member's request."

After further discussion, it was arranged that the motion should be discussed at the conclusion of to-night's sitting, which is devoted to the committee stage, now approaching its close, of the Unemployment Bill.—British Wireless.

REAL-LIFE JEKYL AND HYDES

throne, wandered far afield, proclaiming himself a beggar whose worries, proportioned to his means, were infinitesimal.

Of John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man—his fortune was once estimated at 600 million dollars—they used to say that he was happiest when posing as a poor philanthropist, who was hard pressed to spare a few dollars. Armed with a bagful of dimes, i.e., 5 cent pieces, he would distribute the contents to deserving workers on his estate, and the smiles he received in return, and for which he patiently waited, made his amusing pose seem all the more real.

We have the Bible, which never fails us, to round off our illustrations with the moving masquerade of Joseph before his brethren, who had come up to Egypt to buy corn. Who shall forget the way he dissembled before them—pretending to mistake them for spies, then casting them into prison and, finally, when his aged father, the patriarch Jacob, had been persuaded to send along his youngest son, Benjamin, revealing himself, amidst tears, to these, his astonished brethren, as the Joseph they had sold into captivity? In the days that these transactions lasted what a double life he led, this Hebrew interpreter of dreams whom Pharaoh delighted to honour!

Adorn the theme with a moral, and we are done with the reader: Better be your real self, whatever the pains and penalties, than some fictitious person, whatever the imagined benefit. Then, least of all, shall we come to harm.

Leave the masquerade to eccentrics, and people, like tragic Castledale, who live on their wits.

PRINCE FLIES TO FAIR

NOT DETERRED BY SNOWSTORMS

London, Feb. 27. When the Prince of Wales flew in his private aeroplane to-day from Windsor to the British Industries Fair in Birmingham, he encountered snowstorms, heavy clouds and very bunmy conditions.

He made an extensive tour of the Fair and showed great interest in many of the displays, which are principally devoted to Birmingham to the heavy industries.

Both London sections of the Fair were to-day visited by the Prime Minister, who declared himself much impressed. "The Fair gets better every year," he said, "and it cheers me to hear of the great improvement in trade being done."—British Wireless.

LIKELY F. A. AND SCOTTISH CUP SEMI-FINALISTS

MOTHERWELL, ST. JOHNSTONE AND RANGERS

ST. MIRREN AND CELTIC MAY HAVE TO MEET AGAIN

(By "The Pilgrim")

WITH the quarter-finals of both the English and Scottish Cup competitions being played off on Saturday, Homeside fans will have one of the greatest football feasts of the season—greater even than the Cup final to which thousands have already made application, to find that the capacity of the venue has long been filled.

Arsenal have the fates on their side this season and, but for the luck of the draw, it is hardly likely that they would have continued thus far in a competition which they entered so inauspiciously.

The previous rounds enabled them to settle down in their stride now and the visit of Aston Villa will not be the obstacle it would have been a month ago. The Villa have been going great guns but I cannot easily imagine a report of their victory.

Manchester City are the only club in this round who survived the distance last season and they have a great chance of going even further. Stoke have improved considerably lately and took points from Aston Villa in the League last week, but it is unlikely that they will beat the City on their own ground.

It is not so unlikely however, as Northampton's eclipse of Huddersfield at the First Divisioner's pitch in the fourth round.

I wonder if Portsmouth will hold the pace they have been setting lately. I think they will win despite the bad luck they encountered in the draw. They travel to Bolton and will probably meet with even more exciting scenes than at Swansea.

The Preston-Leicester match is the most difficult to forecast.

Matters are a little easier north of the border where Aberdeen and Albion Rovers sustain the challenge from the Junior divisions. Albion have a sporting chance, being at home to Motherwell, but the League leaders seem to do better away from home and I expect them to win.

Queen's South will give St. Johnstone a great game and if they had retained their form of a month or so ago I would fancy them for the semi-finals. As it is I feel that the home club have the winning advantage.

Rangers have the easiest task in entertaining Aberdeen, and Celtic have perhaps the most difficulty in their journey to St. Mirren. Although the latter have proved poor League fighters, they will go all out in the major competition of the year.

This Special Cup Training Is Only Superstition

OLD LEAGUE PLAYER SAYS WHAT CLUBS NEED IS REST CURE

The Cup quarter-finals to be played on Saturday make this article from the pen of a former player especially interesting now.

"At this stage of the football season, when players are beginning to feel the strain of the League programme and F.A. Cup ties, the question of special training causes a great deal of controversy among players and spectators alike. Opinion is sharply divided as to whether it is beneficial to a team."

"Personally, I was not greatly in favour of going to the seaside or into the country for a long period. I much preferred to get on to a golf course, where I could obtain all the exercise I wanted. In those days there were trainers to whom the name of golf was a curse; so I had put in many spells away from home."

REST FOR CUP TIES.

"It has many advantages and, frankly, in the long run, I think it does a lot of good if, like medicine, it is taken in small doses. But to go week after week to the seaside before each round of the Cup, as some teams did is not special training, but a superstition. They do so because, once upon a time, a team did something out of the ordinary after staying in such and such a place."

"Take the Arsenal and Chelsea as typical examples. Arsenal now go to Brighton regularly, staying at the same hotel, mainly because it was from there that they won the Cup four years ago. Chelsea are going back to Guildford for the reason that they have not lost a match since taking up their quarters there."

"In my opinion, it is a mistake to overdo the special training business. The change of air, the companionship and the restfulness of mind have supplied the required tonic in the first instance. Surely,

another pick-me-up is not required a fortnight later."

"After all, the players are perfectly fit at this period. The idea of special training is not to try to make them fitter, but to prevent them from being overtrained or, as it is called, from becoming stale. As a matter of fact, special training is the wrong description. It should be called 'special rest for Cup ties.' Once a season should be enough."

"While on the subject of fitness, I wonder how many people realise how perfectly trained, and how hard a player really is. I did not myself until my playing days were over."

CUP FINAL TICKETS.

Whenever I meet an old friend or player he usually greets me with, 'Why, you look fit enough to turn out again.' So it will be gathered that in appearance I have altered little, but in fitness, compared with my playing days, I am an invalid. I would not last five minutes of an average League game."

If I needed any confirmation of this fact I had it recently when playing with the schoolboys, a part of the coaching scheme at Highbury. After ten minutes, although practically walking through the match, I could scarcely drag one leg after the other. Moreover, where my instep had come into contact with the ball it was black and blue."

Probably the explanation is that the muscles have disappeared into flesh. At any rate, my weight is now 14 lb. less than it was during my career, according to the scales at the Highbury Stadium."

It is interesting to note here that the demand for Cup Final tickets has been as great as ever. Already the number for disposal to the public has been over-applied for and they can only be obtained now through the clubs and the various county associations.

FOOTBALL CHATTER BY "THE PILGRIM"

INTERESTING ITEMS GLEANED FROM THE VARIOUS CAMPS

LESLIE, the Plymouth Argyle forward, has been to London to consult an eye specialist. He is suffering from an injury due to a loose football lace.

CHESTERFIELD returned £1,200 to unsuccessful applicants for seats at the Aston Villa Cup tie.

"UTILITY" Nicholas, of Derby has deputised as goalkeeper, right back, and centre half because of injuries to players.

FRED Roberts, of Birmingham, was playing minor football a few weeks ago. He is already hailed as a star.

CANNOCK Town, the Birmingham League club, are in bad straits financially. They have placed all their professional staff upon the open transfer list.

NORMAN Cole, the latest local to make a hit in Southampton's League side, has not yet finished his apprenticeship. He is a fitter.

CLAPTON Orient have set up a record for Third Division clubs. Two centre forwards on their staff up to a week or so ago, shared an aggregate of 500 League goals—Morris (291) and Halliday (209).

JAMES Nelson (Newcastle), Harry Morton (Aston Villa), Vivian Gibbins (Southampton), Harry Race (Notts Forest), George McNeisty (Bristol Rovers), and Ernest Whittam (Chester) all celebrate birthdays together.

TWO seasons ago Plymouth Argyle were thinking of letting Archie Gorman go. It would need a big bid now.

5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

THIS AIR-BALL PLAY

CAN ONLY BE AVOIDED BY PLAYERS POSITIONING THEMSELVES

(By "Saracen").

It is a common complaint of modern football that the ball is too often in the air. There are two reasons for this. One is the lack of attention to the details of positional play and the other to the eagerness of teams to force the pace and score by hook or by crook.

The suggestion that faulty positional play leads to the ball being kicked into the air may seem strange. But, suppose, for instance, that a wing half back has the ball at his feet under control and that he takes it forward a few yards. His object is to make a pass to one of his own forwards, but on looking up he finds the men to whom he might send the ball stationary. Moreover, their opponents standing by them in the circumstances it is not worth while to put them in possession.

What can he do? It is certain that he will be challenged and his only alternative to the risk of being robbed is to get rid of it.

So he kicks it haphazardly into the middle and up it goes into the air and he trusts it may go to his own centre forward rather than to an opposing defender.

This blind kick would have been avoided if one of the forwards within reach of him had made it his business to get to position. The half back would then have had the opportunity to get the ball through to him by means of an accurate ground pass.

In regard to the other cause of "air-ball" play teams are obsessed with the idea of gaining ground quickly and in pursuing this policy they resort to the long pass. This style does not permit of much accuracy. Indeed it amounts to little more than hard kicking. There is little constructive play and there is no real attempt to "make" a goal. Rather, by putting the ball in the air and going hard after it do they hope to worry an opponent into a mistake from which a chance to get in a successful shot may come.

In my experience there has been a marked development of this type of football this season and the result has been that the game has lost a good deal of its spectacular charm. It has driven out close and inter-passing movements and in their stead we have had a style of play that has been notable for the hurry and scurry of the players rather than for their science and craft.

CRICKET

LOSERS' POOR BATTING

A weak Hongkong C.C. team was beaten by 75 runs in a friendly cricket match by the Hongkong Volunteers yesterday afternoon, a feature of the game being a brilliant bowling spasm by G. R. M. Ricketts, the slow bowler, who at one stage of the game took six wickets for three runs in 4.2 overs, one of which was a maiden.

The Volunteers were given a promising start by E. J. R. Mitchell and E. C. Finch, but with the exception of 24 from N. A. E. Ricketts, the other batsmen were unable to take advantage of the position. Mitchell was not dismissed until he had scored 67, and when he had made 68 Finch retired. The innings closed at 178.

Ricketts, who was not put on to bowl until the opening batsmen had severely punished all the other bowlers, conceded 17 runs in his first four overs, including a six, but he then had an inspired spell and during his next four overs he took six wickets for three runs.

The Hongkong C.C. were always fighting for runs, although Ricketts and Redmond made something of a stand. Ricketts only made eight, but defended his wicket stubbornly. Just before time for drawing stumps the last Hongkong C.C. wicket fell, the total being 105 runs. Scores:

Though the soldiers netted six goals, A. Moss, in goal for the civilians, brought off a number of good saves. C. Halford worked very hard at centre-half and made effective clearances.

In the first half, Johnson and Casey scored, while Johnson (3) and L/C (85) Jones brought the total bag to six in the second period.

TWENTY DEAD; FORTY INJURED

New York, Feb. 26. Twenty are dead and forty badly injured as the result of a terrible railway accident near Pittsburgh to-night.

Crashing over a frozen switch while travelling at a high speed, an express train plunged over a viaduct into the street below.

Frightful scenes were witnessed, and the sufferings of the injured were accentuated by the bitterly cold weather.

Firemen with saws, working with the aid of torch lights, cut through one coach to reach an imprisoned passenger. The engine, tender and several

CHAMPIONSHIP TIES TO-MORROW

GOOD DOUBLES PROMISED

(By "Veritas").

After a lapse of four days, matches in the open tennis championships will, this time weather permitting, be resumed at the Cricket Club to-morrow.

But the programme is very restricted, only three encounters being set down for to-morrow and two on Friday.

Furthermore unless conditions considerably improve these will have to be held over until next week.

The already postponed doubles tie between Sullivan and Duff and Tam and Ng Kam-chuen is down for decision on Thursday, and this is about the most attractive tie. It suggests a fairly comfortable win for the British pair, who are certainly much stronger as a combination. Tam is still wanting in his doubles play, and it is doubtful whether Ng, excellent as he is, can make up the difference.

SERIOUS PROPOSITION.

G. R. M. Ricketts will come up against his first serious proposition in Lu Tak-cheuk, who is playing as well as ever this year in his success against F. H. Kwok testifies. The soft court should be of assistance to the Chinese, who has plenty of twist shots at his command, and Ricketts may find it hard to exploit his driving.

There should be plenty to interest in the meeting between Capt. Cannon and Ng Kam-chuen on Friday. Ng has improved out of all knowledge since last year, but last Capt. Cannon has in no way lost any form is indicated by his success over Lieut. Hoare in the Club tournament, following the Navy man's victory against Cuesumbro.

The programmes arranged for the next two days are:

THURSDAY.

OPEN SINGLES.

G. R. M. Ricketts v. Lu Tak-cheuk

OPEN DOUBLES.

A. L. Sullivan and W. A. H. Duff v. Tam Yee-long and Ng Kam-chuen coaches lay on the road, a twisted mass of wreckage, but fortunately, two sleeping cars and the dining car remained on the track.

First reports stated that five had been killed and twenty injured, but as relief workers set about clearing the debris, the death list mounted steadily.

It is now established that at least twenty are dead. Four are in hospital, seriously injured and a similar number were assisted or carried from the scene of the wreck, suffering from minor injuries.—Router.

NAVAL BUILDING LAST YEAR

London, Feb. 27.

The major powers of the world laid down fewer warships in the year ending Feb. 2, than in the year previous, in spite of the tendency to increase expenditure on national defence and the agitation in this direction in United States, France, Italy, Germany and Great Britain.

Fifty-six warships of all classes were laid down by the British Empire, the United States, France, Japan, Italy, Soviet Russia and Germany during the year, according to official returns.

This number is fewer than in the previous year by 16 vessels. Great Britain is building 24 destroyers and the United States, 32; Britain is building nine submarines and the United States and Japan six each, while France is building 15 and Italy no less than 22.

Britain is building ten cruisers and the United States 11, while Japan, in spite of the rumour of big programmes in Tokyo, has only two under construction. France and Italy have six cruisers each in process of construction.

At the present time the Soviet's battle strength on the sea is small, for her naval forces consist of three battleships, six cruisers, two cruiser-mine-layers, 17 destroyers and 16 submarines.—Reuter Special.

Air Force Strengthened

London, Feb. 27.

A substantial increase in the strength of the Royal Air Force at Singapore is being strongly urged by Naval and Air Force officers, according to the Daily Telegraph.

The newspaper states that there is a growing demand among supporters of the Government for immediate additions to the R.A.F. strength. The agitation is for the addition of at least ten squadrons.—Reuter.

POLICE FORCED TO FIRE ON CROWD

Shanghai, Feb. 27.

The Bureau of Public Safety police were forced to fire into a crowd of fighting men, outside the Foreign Settlement limits in Yangtsepoos this afternoon.

Three wharf coolies were seriously injured during the affray. A fight commenced between rival gangs of coolies, who were unloading oil from a steamer. On the police intervening, they suffered the hostility of all combatants.

The police were forced to fire and to call out reinforcements to quell the disturbance.
Two police were badly mauled and dozens of coolies suffered minor injuries.—Our Own Correspondent.

CLEAN FOOTBALL
JOCK SUTHERLAND
FAMOUS PITTI COACH

ILLEGAL interference with the receiver of a forward pass often results in serious injury to the receiver.
Coaches attempt to instruct their men with the idea that they should play the ball rather than the pass receiver because:
If a defensive man makes a true attempt to hit the ball down and in this way bumps the receiver unintentionally, his actions are seldom defined as interference. However, should he clearly show his interfering actions by remaining on the ground and attempting to prevent the receiver from leaping into the air for a pass by bumping him none too gently, he is guilty of a foul and a serious offense against clean football.
Penalty for this action, as illustrated at left, is possession of the ball by the offensive team at the spot where the foul was committed.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

We all like to get acts and kings because, as a general rule, they are sure trick-winners. But occasionally we find a hand where we must throw away an ace to make our contract.

In today's hand Mrs. Helene Seranton of New York found it necessary to throw away not only her ace of spades, but also her king of spades, to get a coup on the East hand.

Before re-bidding the diamonds,

South shows a fit in hearts by supporting the heart bid. However, when Mrs. Seranton in the South showed a stopper in clubs by a bid of three no trump, North felt that there was a good play for a slam.

The Play

West's opening lead was the queen of clubs, which Mrs. Seranton trumped in dummy with the three of hearts. She then returned the ten of hearts. East properly refused to cover and the ten was allowed to ride through to West's singleton king. West returned the jack of clubs, which was trumped in dummy with the six of hearts. The seven of hearts was played back. Mrs. Seranton finessed the nine, which held.

It now looked as though East's queen of hearts was safe, but Mrs. Seranton next played her queen of diamonds and overtook in the dummy with the ace. She played the king of clubs, and now started to play diamonds.

If East had trumped in, all Mrs. Seranton would have found it necessary to do was to have over-trumped, picked up the last trump, and entered the dummy with the queen of spades.

However, East refused to trump. So Mrs. Seranton simply ran off five straight diamond tricks, discarding all her spades, including the ace and king, and now led a spade from dummy.

East, of course, was forced to trump, having nothing but the two hearts left. Mrs. Seranton over-trumped and won the last trick with the high trump, making her contract of six hearts.

Today's Contract Problem

South plays this hand at four spades. West opens the four of hearts, which East wins with the king. If East does not return a heart, a good squeeze play will produce six-odd. Can you work it?

South shows a fit in hearts by supporting the heart bid. However, when Mrs. Seranton in the South showed a stopper in clubs by a bid of three no trump, North felt that there was a good play for a slam.

ITALY DENIES ANY POLICY CHANGE

Rome, Feb. 27.
Rumours that Italy is contemplating leaving the gold standard are strongly denied by Signor Jung, the Finance Minister, who declares in his own and Premier Mussolini's names, that the Italian Government is determined to maintain the lira anchored to the gold standard, as fixed by the Stabilisation Law of Dec. 21, 1927.—Reuter.

Recent Weakness.

London, Feb. 27.
The recent weakness of the lira has given rise to rumours that Italy will follow Czechoslovakia's example, and depreciate the currency.

Sound bankers here point out that the weakness of the lira is seasonal but is aggravated by withdrawals of funds which Italian emigrants in America previously transferred in order to safeguard themselves against a depreciation of the dollar.

The lira, after touching a discount of over three per cent, in relation to the franc is now recovering slightly.

The Financial Times Paris correspondent states that apprehension exists as to the future of the franc and points out that the Treasury, which is obliged to meet maturities of about £20,000,000 before the end of July, relies on the holders of the securities agreeing to renew their bonds.

But if the bonds are not renewed, if public expenditure is not drastically cut down and if the budget is not properly balanced, then inflation seems inevitable.

Another great danger is the persistently increasing production costs. French manufacturers are rapidly losing their foreign and overseas markets. High tariffs, quotas, and so on, are likely to result in an increase in the cost of living, and therefore higher wages,

MAXTON'S THREAT.

UNEMPLOYED MARCH TO 10
DOWNING STREET

London, Feb. 27.
Notwithstanding the Prime Minister's refusal to receive a deputation of the unemployed marchers who have invaded London, a party of 40 of these visitors, headed by Mr. James Maxton and Mr. John McGovern, Labour members of Parliament, marched to No. 10 Downing Street to-day.

They halted there and demanded to see Mr. MacDonald.

Upon a secretary stating that Mr. MacDonald was not even in the building, Mr. Maxton told him that he regarded the incident as a personal insult and would raise the matter in the House of Commons.

Addressing the deputation of marchers outside the Prime Minister's door, Mr. Maxton dwelt upon the peaceable nature of the steps they had taken hitherto to secure a hearing and redress. But if the Government closed all constitutional doors to them, the unemployed, then there were other doors with which they would have to deal, he threatened.—Reuter.

thus accounting the difficulties.

The paper states that important French producers secretly favour devaluation of the franc, as they are convinced the franc is stabilised too high.—Reuter.

Another Reduction.

New York, Feb. 27.

Lending bankers are discussing the question of a further cut in the gold value of the dollar, as commodity prices are not rising as it was anticipated they would do. But some sections of Wall Street believe that the better way to raise prices would be to cut them, thereby stimulating the demand, which in time would advance prices again.—Reuter.

DIPLOMAT'S DEATH

OGPU OFFICER'S BODY IN CONSULATE

Istanbul, Feb. 27.
A first-class sensation has been created in diplomatic and political circles by the death, in mysterious circumstances, of Ivan Michin, 35, Second Secretary to the Soviet Embassy at Ankara.

Michin was found dead on the bathroom of the Soviet Consulate half an hour before he was due to sail for Odessa.

Last week Michin was ordered to return to Moscow by the OGPU for whom he has been working.

One theory is that Michin preferred to kill himself rather than return, and another is that he was murdered for refusing to return.

Turkish police are inclined to the belief that he was murdered.—Reuter.

ROTARY CLUB TIFFIN.

SPECIAL FUNCTION PUT OFF TO FRIDAY

The Rotary Club of Hongkong had arranged a "Ladies Day" at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden for to-morrow, to be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Norwood, Minister of the City Temple, London.

As it is now announced that the Tandu on which Dr. Norwood is travelling from Japan to Australia, will be in port a day later than scheduled time, the tiffin will be held on Friday, March 2, instead.

The directors of the Rotary Club hope that members and their guests will be able to adjust their engagements to attend on the new date, and very much regret the unavoidably short notice of the change.

Dr. Norwood's subject will be "Armaments in the Modern World."

OFFICER'S GAOL EXPLOITS

A PENCHANT FOR TROUBLE

AGAIN ARRESTED IN GERMANY

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1891. Received, February 28, 1934.)

Nuremberg, Feb. 28.
After being given gaol sentences on four occasions, once as a Nazi, once as a Communist, once by the French and once by the Americans during the Rhineland occupation, Richard Scheringer is again in conflict with the police.

Scheringer is to-day regarded as one of Herr Hitler's toughest opponents in the ranks of the Communists.

He came under the eyes of the police and was arrested while trying to leave a cinema unobtrusively without waiting to sing the Nazi anthem.

Richard Scheringer has had a most remarkable experience in the political sphere. He was formerly a lieutenant in the Reichswehr, being one of the smartest officers in the Army.

NAZI TURNED RED.

He had strongly Nationalistic ideas and was eventually confined to a fortress for attempting to form Nazi cells in the Reichswehr. When he was tried, Herr Hitler appeared personally as a witness in his defence.

While in the fortress prison, however, Scheringer's political views underwent a complete change. He was released from prison an avowed Communist and was immediately sent back for a heavier sentence under the new Nazi regime.

PEACE OVERTURE ANTI-CLIMAX

AERIAL INCIDENTS ON FRONTIERS

JAPANESE LODGING PROTEST

WAR CLOUDS HAVE AGAIN LOOMED UP IN RUSSO-JAPANESE RELATIONS. COMING AS A SHARP ANTI-CLIMAX TO THE PACIFIC OVERTURES EARLIER THIS WEEK.

Serious incidents—or incidents regarded seriously—have occurred on the frontier, Japan officially announcing that a Japanese military plane was last week shot down by Soviet troops, while Russian aeroplanes crossed the Korean border twice during the week-end.

Soviet violation of Korean territory is regarded most seriously in Japan, and the Foreign Office in Tokyo has, says Reuter, confirmed a report that instructions are being sent to Mr. Ota, the Ambassador in Moscow, to lodge a strong protest with M. Litvinoff.

It is alleged that groups of Russian planes flew over both the Korean and Manchurian borders.

Feeling has again blazed up as a direct consequence of the military disclosures.

WHITE RUSSIAN LEGION

For Japanese Invasion of Siberia

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1891. Received, February 28, 1934.)

San Francisco, Feb. 27.
The organisation of a White Russian Legion of the Japanese Army for participating in the "Japanese Invasion of Siberia" is being planned by General Vonstasky, the publisher of the New York White Russian newspaper, "The Russian Fascist."

General Vonstasky, who had always had dreams of a fresh campaign against the Soviet, is leaving San Francisco on Friday by the President van Buren on his way to Tokyo.

OFFICIAL REPORTS OF INCIDENTS

Deaths in Amur Firing Incident Denied

Tokyo, Feb. 28.
It is reported from Changchun that a Japanese military plane was shot down by Soviet troops near the confluence of the Amur and Sungari rivers and that the crew was killed.

The Japanese military authorities admit the plane was brought down by gunfire but deny that there were any casualties.
—Reuter.

A War Office spokesman to-day confirmed the receipt of official reports stating that Soviet military aeroplanes twice crossed the Korean border, on February 23 and February 25.
—Reuter.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

There are conflicting reports in regard to the shooting down of a Japanese aeroplane by Soviet troops, some papers reporting that all aboard were killed and others that there were no casualties.

The newspaper Jiji reports that Mr. Ota, the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow has been instructed to file a strong protest concerning the crossing of the Korean frontier by Soviet planes.

ARMED RAID ON STATION

DEATH SENTENCES IN INDIA

NORTH BENGAL INCIDENT

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1891. Received, February 28, 1934.)

Dinajpur, Feb. 27.
A daring armed raid on a railway station in North Bengal on October 28 last had a sequel in the criminal court here to-day when thirteen men faced grave charges in connection with the affair.

Several persons were wounded by the raiders during the attack. The victims included passengers aboard a train, mail carriers and porters.

The coup was completely successful. The bandits attacked the station and decamped with the money from the ticket office together with the mail from the train which had just steamed into the station.

They fired a fusillade of bullets when the staff attempted to prevent their escape and it was then that most of the casualties occurred.

ONLY THREE RUN IN CHAMPIONS

DISMAL RACING CONDITIONS

FEW UPSETS

Dismal weather, with racing proceeding in a steady drizzle from an early hour, spoiled the fourth day of the annual meeting both from the viewpoint of the spectators and participants.

Owing to the wretched conditions only three ponies faced the starter for the main event, the Champions Stakes, in which Liberty Bay started a firm favourite.

Chesterfield won the first event of the day comfortably after Corrie had led for most of the way, and a thrilling finish was provided in the Grand Stand Stakes. Red Shank made the running, but Macaroni, King's Fancy and Electric Star closed at the Village Bend and they fought out the finish between them.

The favourite, Electric Star, just managed to get the verdict by a neck from Macaroni. Soldier of China ran fifth.

Only three ponies faced the starter for the Ladies' Purse and Diana Bay, ridden by Mr. L. G. Frost, won easily from Cosack's Beauty and Hetman. Diana Bay led all the way.

Miss Dowbiggin is presenting the purse to the winning jockey at the tiffin interval.

PONY BREAKS LEG.

SEARCHLIGHT DISPLAY

Hongkong residents are due for another treat reminiscent of the Navy Day celebrations during the week-end March 17-18.

The naval authorities have decided to give another searchlight display during the Saturday evening, from all warships in harbour, on an even bigger scale than that of Navy Day.

On the Sunday, two ships will be open for view to the public.

Dr. Gomboss, Hungarian Premier, with Dr. Dollfus, Austria's Chancellor. They are to visit Rome in connexion with the Italian economic scheme.

ARMED RAID ON STATION

DEATH SENTENCES IN INDIA

NORTH BENGAL INCIDENT

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1891. Received, February 28, 1934.)

Dinajpur, Feb. 27.
A daring armed raid on a railway station in North Bengal on October 28 last had a sequel in the criminal court here to-day when thirteen men faced grave charges in connection with the affair.

Several persons were wounded by the raiders during the attack. The victims included passengers aboard a train, mail carriers and porters.

The coup was completely successful. The bandits attacked the station and decamped with the money from the ticket office together with the mail from the train which had just steamed into the station.

They fired a fusillade of bullets when the staff attempted to prevent their escape and it was then that most of the casualties occurred.

ONLY THREE RUN IN CHAMPIONS

FEW UPSETS

Dismal weather, with racing proceeding in a steady drizzle from an early hour, spoiled the fourth day of the annual meeting both from the viewpoint of the spectators and participants.

Owing to the wretched conditions only three ponies faced the starter for the main event, the Champions Stakes, in which Liberty Bay started a firm favourite.

Chesterfield won the first event of the day comfortably after Corrie had led for most of the way, and a thrilling finish was provided in the Grand Stand Stakes. Red Shank made the running, but Macaroni, King's Fancy and Electric Star closed at the Village Bend and they fought out the finish between them.

The favourite, Electric Star, just managed to get the verdict by a neck from Macaroni. Soldier of China ran fifth.

Only three ponies faced the starter for the Ladies' Purse and Diana Bay, ridden by Mr. L. G. Frost, won easily from Cosack's Beauty and Hetman. Diana Bay led all the way.

Miss Dowbiggin is presenting the purse to the winning jockey at the tiffin interval.

PONY BREAKS LEG.

WAR CLOUDS HAVE AGAIN LOOMED UP IN RUSSO-JAPANESE RELATIONS. COMING AS A SHARP ANTI-CLIMAX TO THE PACIFIC OVERTURES EARLIER THIS WEEK.

Serious incidents—or incidents regarded seriously—have occurred on the frontier, Japan officially announcing that a Japanese military plane was last week shot down by Soviet troops, while Russian aeroplanes crossed the Korean border twice during the week-end.

Soviet violation of Korean territory is regarded most seriously in Japan, and the Foreign Office in Tokyo has, says Reuter, confirmed a report that instructions are being sent to Mr. Ota, the Ambassador in Moscow, to lodge a strong protest with M. Litvinoff.

It is alleged that groups of Russian planes flew over both the Korean and Manchurian borders.

Feeling has again blazed up as a direct consequence of the military disclosures.

By Joan Savoy

Every woman should possess certain gowns which give her personality a slant even her best friends don't know.

Hostess gowns do this very thing, and do it hand-somerly.

A few years ago, only the very rich knew anything about this type of costume which has such an in-imate aspect to it. It's a cross between a ravishing gown and an irresistible negligee.
In fact, the best of them combine the most precious characteristics of both.

Such a handsome contribution to any busy woman's life is a monk's gown of brown heavy crepe, shot with silver in broken checks. Its lines are classical, with long, flowing sleeves that make your hands look little and helpless, and the monk's collar, high in front, just naturally makes you hold your head high and hopefully.

At the back, instead of a very low, neckless cut, as so many things have this winter, this gown has a cowl neckline, draped so it actually looks a little like those old-fashioned "hood" backs that could be drawn up over the head for protection.

The gown trails all around. You have to kick it a bit to walk, but that gives you a lady-feeling that every woman should have once in a while. And about the waistline is a silver cord, which crosses in the back, comes to the front again to knot and then hangs with handsome silver fringes about six inches long.

Whether this is the exact gown you want or not take a good look at it. It's the type every woman needs. It brings out in her that soft, feminine, helpless quality that women, even the most successful, would do well to cultivate in this year.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Keeping Peace in Family

"Turn off the radio, Ted. I can't read with that infernal racket."

"Aw, Dad, listen. It's finishin' up the mystery—there! See, Betty, I told you it was the cousin stole it. Gee! Listen to 'im yell.
Aw, just a minute, Dad. It's nearly over and I wanta hear how—"
"Shut it off!"

Silence. And two children feeling, well you know how they felt, with every nerve strained to catch the end of the story.

Butch came in with Jim. Ruth just back from her holiday visit ran over to tell Betty about it.

Mother warned them all not to talk too loud by shaking her head and occasionally laying her finger to her lips.

Search for Quiet

But Dad threw down his paper finally and said he was going out.
No use staying in a place where you couldn't even think.

"Don't go, Chris!" she begged.
"They can all go out to the dining room and play ping pong. I'll close the door tight."

"Our light bills are big enough.
One sitting room ought to do a family."

In another five years it will be reversed. Ted will be putting on his hat after dinner and Betty's dates will be any place but home.

Maybe Chris will be satisfied then and he can read his papers till the cows come home, or the children.

I do think that children needn't confiscate, commandeer, or "hog" a whole house. They do sometimes, you know. But they need some place to play, to talk to friends, and where they can feel free. Chris spent more money trying to escape than the dining room light would have cost.

Making Concessions

Family, evenings where all are together are fine things, but it is expecting too much to think that children will be satisfied with this forever, especially if it is an all-evening seance.

Even if there are no friends circulating in the post-prandial hours, they have their own ideas of entertainment. If Chris could not stand the radio what was the matter with having it up in Betty's room, or Ted's?

Harmony in any family depends much on certain concessions to the rights and tastes of all its members. Certainly a tired man needs peace and quiet, and we might add that his wife does too.
But children will be children and what are we going to do about it?
The question seems to answer itself.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A situation in which a spilt musical comedy star finds herself falling in love with the man who has openly insulted her and whom she engages as a private secretary in order to humiliate him, is bound to have an appeal for all who appreciate the subtleties and piquancy of such a situation. Filmmakers, therefore, should visit the Central Theatre to-day and see "The Song You Gave Me" in which Betty Daniels and Victor Varconi, as Mizzi and Karl, find themselves in just a situation. A delightful romance bristling with all the devices that go to make worthwhile entertainment. "The Song You Gave Me" was directed by Paul Stein, and Noel Gay has written two numbers. "The Song You Gave Me" and "Who'll Buy Me" which provides haunting musical background.

"Her Bodyguard"

Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson play the leading roles in "Her Bodyguard," romantic comedy produced for Paramount by B. F. Schulberg, which opens to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. "Her Bodyguard" is the amusing story of the love affair between a beautiful stage star and the private detective assigned by a jealous "sugar daddy" to guard her from rivals. How the girl and the bodyguard outwit everyone else and find happiness together provides a highly funny tale. Miss Gibson is cast as the star, Dinehart, playing the role of her producer, a gentleman with intentions. Arnold, a millionaire, is another character who follows with approximate. The same idea. Arnold hires the bodyguard, ostensibly to protect the star's jewels, but actually to see that Dinehart doesn't make any progress with her. Wynne is incensed at the scheme, but soon she sees the humour of the situation. Lowe is so capable a bodyguard that even the man who hired him can't get anywhere near the star. It's not long before they're in love, and from the time on, things move along at a hilarious pace. "Where Have I Heard That Melody," a new song hit by Sam Coslow and Arthur Johnston, is introduced during the action of "Her Bodyguard."

"Walls of Gold," the new Fox Film, adapted for the screen from the best-selling novel of the same name by Kathleen Norris, comes to the King's Theatre, on Thursday. The leading roles are portrayed by Sally Eilers and Norman Foster, the two unforgettable young lovers of "State Fair". The story, aiming with all of Kathleen Norris' directness and logic at the vital concerns of modern youth, goes to the core of a situation in which a young girl is given one of the most difficult choices to make. She is an expensive beauty, and must weigh the advantages of true and unselfish love and those of a life of luxury and ease. The one is offered to her by a young man who adores her. The other is held out to her by the young man's uncle, a man of untold wealth, lavish entertainments and an artist's taste peculiarly his own. In "Walls of Gold," Miss Eilers and Norman Foster are said to have roles even more attractive than those that brought them to the forefront as a romantic pair in "State Fair". Their supporting cast is headed by Ralph Morgan, and includes Rosita Moreno, Spanish dancer and actress; Rochelle Hudson, beautiful newcomer to the screen; Freddie Santley, Marjorie Gatenby, Mary Mason and Margaret Seddon.

"Love Lies" Jerry Walker, while watching a bullfight in Spain, unwittingly leads an ardent Spanish admirer to believe he is "Lord Letgoe," but imagine his consternation when, on a visit to his pal, "Rolly" Rider, an artist, the real Lord Letgoe arrives, followed by the passionate Spanish lady, who immediately throws her arms round Jerry's neck, and addresses him by name. This is the situation that arises in "Love Lies," showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Rolly devises a plan to get Lord Letgoe out of the way, while Jerry deals with his ardent "Junotta." He decides to, then and there, make a portrait of his rich client, who is urged to don a suit of armor, and the purpose of the vizor becomes "accidentally" wedged, and Lord Letgoe is unable to free himself. During the production of "Love Lies" Wallis Arthur, who played the part of the worthy peer, on the completion of a rehearsal of this scene, was told it was lunch time. Alas! when he came to remove the vizor it really was wedged. The more he struggled to free himself, the more the other players laughed, thinking he was "guying" for their benefit, but when they reached the studio restaurant, and he did not come, they became anxious. Soon, however, their yells of merriment burst out afresh, for in walked the queerest figure, Wallis arrived complete with vizor and, disdaining the offers of help from his companions, ordered his lunch which he forced to eat via the mouth-piece of his uncomfortable head-gear.

"The Power and the Glory"

At the King's Theatre, the new Fox Film, "The Power and the Glory," introduces "Narrator" to the screen. It is the Jesse L. Lasky production that has been heralded throughout the motion picture world as the film that will revolutionize movie making. Narrator is the technique evolved by Lasky from the original script prepared by Preston Sturges, noted playwright. It is the method of telling a story, that takes the highlights in a man's life and weaves them into a unified pattern without subjecting the incidents to a chronological order. It is this technique that is said to place unusual emphasis on the important elements in the film, thus clearing the way for better storytelling development and a more telling of the story itself. In what is said to be the outstanding role of his career, portrays the central characterization. Colleen Moore, absent from the screen for the past three years, makes what is reported as a triumphant return in the leading feminine role. Others in the National picture starring Edward G. Robinson and now showing at the Alhambra Theatre, is of unusual interest and importance because of the historical background and the scores of relics used which have been handed down from the days of H.W. Taber. These relics, some of which are original, and others replicas, are intimately associated with the life of the colourful Silver King. Yates Martin, whose spectacular career is pictured by Edward G. Robinson. Among these relics are telegraph inscriptions used to notify Taber of his election as Lieut. Governor, and the baby carriage in which he wheeled his daughter Silver Dollar about the streets of Denver. Taber's daring rise from poverty to fortune, and his subsequent crash, are excitingly depicted in the screen play which was adapted by Carl Erickson and Harvey Thew from David Karsner's book. Betty Daniels portrays the part of Martin's darling, and beautiful second wife, whose marriage to the 30-day Senator was the sensation of Washington, while Aline MacMahon has the role of the first wife, whom he deserted after acquiring wealth, to the scandal of a nation. The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green.

Clean Within & Without!
The Perfectly Healthy Child

Chubby, rosy cheeks and a bright smiling face should be the heritage of every child, and if these are lacking there must be a reason—and a remedy!

A simple well-tried method of ensuring these signs of good health is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets whenever the little one is ailing. Mildly laxative, these Tablets keep the infantile intestinal tract clear and clean, which is the first essential for perfect health. Besides.

correct wind and colic, aid digestion, allay feverishness, make teething easy, expel worms, and strengthen the little one's resistance to colds. On account of their pleasant taste there is never any fuss over administering Baby's Own Tablets, as is so often the case when nauseating medicines such as Castor Oil are given.

Keep a vial always in the home—every chemist sells them, and your children will thrive when minor ailments which beset them are promptly corrected by the use of Baby's Own Tablets.

BRITAIN'S STEADY PROGRESS

Not only is British trade on the up-grade, but the improvement noteworthy in recent months has come to stay. That is the conclusion reached by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who, from his position as Chancellor of the Exchequer and by reason of his close contact with trading interests, is able to speak with some authority on the subject. The belief is also evidently held by our manufacturers, who are so encouraged by prospects that they feel they can justifiably expand their plant and equipment. The steady upward trend has been manifest for some time now, so much so that in the iron and steel industries there has been so much activity that in some directions difficulty has been experienced in fulfilling requirements of consumers. The position in the coal-mining areas is also improving, whilst ship-building is taking a turn for the better. Engineering, metal goods, the motor industry and distributive trades have also been reporting better conditions, and there has been a marked improvement in the pottery industry. The effect of this activity is seen in a decided increase in the number of people actually in employment. In recent months this increase has been most marked, a fact which provides the best possible evidence of the revival of trade activity. There is, of course, a tremendous amount of leeway to be made up, but it is reassuring to feel that the trend is at any rate in the right direction. The world position is still far from being composed, and the innumerable barriers to expansion provided by tariff walls and other obstructions make the task of complete recovery extremely difficult. Yet, in spite of these obstacles, British business men are adapting themselves to the circumstances in a manner which proves that the old spirit of quiet determination is still very much alive. Neither in the realm of commerce nor of finance has Britain plunged into experiments of doubtful value. Her position to-day is the result of wise and patient action along sound lines. The measure of progress already recorded is all the more satisfying when we bear in mind the immensity of the difficulties which have had to be faced. It is, in fact, little short of miraculous that at a time when so many other nations are still in the depths of depression, Britain should be showing definite signs of permanent recovery.

NOTES OF THE DAY

EUROPEAN MAZE

The European political tangle is not rendered less of a maze by the hints of better success attending Germany's diplomatic activities. A correct appraisal of the situation is, indeed, more difficult than ever. The precise significance of all the moves in the game may not appear until much later in the day, but one thing is clear, namely, that Austria's leaders are more readily disposed to listen to the voice of Berlin. No definite statement has been forthcoming from either Berlin or Vienna, but there is plenty of circumstantial justification for the belief, including the statement from Dr. Dollfuss's office declaring that no trouble is expected to-day when, at noon, Herr Habicht's ultimatum expires.

THE INFERENCE

The inference appears to be obvious. No trouble is expected because the occasion for quarrel has been removed or negotiations to that end are proceeding satisfactorily. An agreement, according to one source, is expected in the next few days but what will be the end of it all, no-one can foresee. Such a development, following so closely in the wake of Signor Savitch's trip to Vienna and Budapest, would be surprising. It may mean peace between Austria and Germany. But it would increase the alarm and anxieties in Rome and Paris, not to mention London.

MUSSOLINI'S PLANS

That Signor Mussolini's instructions to Signor Savitch change of front is quite certain. If Hitler satisfies Major Fey, the Italian reaction will be far from favourable. Signor Mussolini has other ideas and other plans and believes that Dr. Dollfuss is with him. The Austrian Chancellor may, however, find himself caught up by a strong current and must go with the stream. A year in office has made him a realist. If the Heimwehr goes Nazi he must follow or quit.

GERMANY AND PRAGUE

Equally interesting are the German overtures to Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benes may well wonder which way to turn. A close friendship between Austria and Germany, hemming his country in between two Nazi States, will not be viewed by the Czech Foreign Minister with any complacency. And the Italian alternative, an Austro-Hungarian alliance, is politically almost as displeasing, thrusting, as it does, a wedge between the Little Entente Powers. Germany's Non-Aggression Pact offer cannot lightly be dismissed in these circumstances and there would be no hesitation if other considerations did not enter into the question. But France looms very large and M. Benes is not likely to be stampeded into any move that threatens Czechoslovakia relations with France. Herr Hitler has weaned Poland away from French influence. Prague offers a much more difficult proposition.

OPEN-BOOK EXAMINATIONS

From the University of Chicago comes the announcement that students in the "humanities" course will be allowed to bring their textbooks, notes and whatever other reference material they wish when they take their final examinations next June. The questions will be designed not merely to test the student's knowledge of facts but his ability to find and correlate them and draw conclusions therefrom. The idea seems meritorious. It much more nearly approximates the ordinary conditions in which the students will do his later work and apply his intellectual equipment. There he would be considered slumped in his methods if he wasted time trying to remember uncertainly what can be checked with certainty in reference manuals. Of course, a certain amount of ready information is necessary for quickness in every vocation or avocation, but this will implant itself with use.

THE 'CARTWHEEL' RETURNS

Manufacturers in Illinois were responsible for an interesting experiment a week or two ago when they met their entire weekly payroll with silver dollars. Instead of getting envelopes containing bank notes, the workers got little canvas sacks, filled with dollars—heavy, clinking, and somehow exceedingly satisfying to handle. The step was taken, it is explained, to popularise silver currency and to bring more pressure on the administration in its silver policy. So far as it went it was a good idea. There is something solid and comforting about the feeling of a silver dollar. It feels like more money than a dollar bill, for some reason; it rings in an authoritative manner when thrown down on a counter. Obviously if silver can be made more popular as a medium of exchange in the United States and other parts of the world, there would be little need for artificial price stimulation.

REAL LIFE JEKYLLS AND HYDES

By BERNARD FALK

THOUGH the strange detail to our minds, we should not be too much surprised by the dual life led by "Arthur Leon Castledale," dead in a motor-car crash in London, who was a Cambridge waiter by day and a supposed wealthy man about town by night—in stark truth, an adventurer and a criminal.

In all great cities there are to be found people masquerading as the opposites to their real selves. Sometimes the deception has an innocent purpose, and no one is imposed upon but the masqueraders, which is as well.

There are cases, known to most of us, where an attempt is made to escape from the unrelieved monotony of a humdrum existence; in short, to find, in an assumed pose, the thrill and excitement unobtainable in the normal, daily round.

The world has many Cinderellas to whose care-haunted natures it is, occasionally, a blessed safety-valve to behave as though they believed the fairy-tale Prince were actually on his way. If none else is harmed, why should we harshly condemn those imagined golden hours, when castles in the air seem to stretch to earth?

Alas! that what is begun with no ulterior object in view, and no evil in contemplation, should, from time to time, end miserably and disastrously in war on society. Then, made pose fraudulently as mistresses; "fake" heiresses to mythical thousands are born of once innocently-dreaming work-girls; and, sad that it should be so, clerks who at the seaside affect the manner of lords of creation, finish up at the Old Bailey.

When they started out in life they had not meant to be criminals. Vanity, that grew to be an overmastering passion, proved their undoing. They sought, of pleasing fancies, pure phantasms of the mind, to make concrete realities. Without the means to command, they essayed to live, in practice, the kind of life to which they had fondly dreamt. They were weak-willed people who, as a famous London magistrate remarked to me, just before the war, persuaded themselves that wishing was a reasonable excuse for taking.

Not infrequently it will happen that a genuine duality of nature is present to account for startling contradictions in a man's conduct. Dr. Jekyll, honourable gentleman and philanthropist, who, by means of a drug, could be transformed into Mr. Hyde, the personification of evil, was a creature of Robert Louis Stevenson's dreaming brain. Yet what was there in the novelist's phantasy, that had been based on sleeping vision, to exceed in actual wonder the astonishing dual personality of Francis Villon? Think of him, one part thief and murderous ruffian, other part marvellous poet; who for a month should play with consummate ease the gentleman in some princely castle in Blois, and the next month be on the road, joyously consorting with beggars and vagabonds! There is your Jekyll and Hyde in real life, without need of novelist's magic drug to explain the miracle of change from rogue to gentleman of genius, and vice-versa.

In my early days in London no more extravagant form of "double life" was led than by a Dickensian character, whose ambition was to live at the rate of £10,000 a year. Having been left only £1,000, a year, he arranged his affairs as follows: Eleven months in the year he stayed at one of the Rowton Houses, permitting himself an expenditure of two or three shillings a day, and the remaining month he moved into the most expensive suite at a fashionable West End hotel—to enjoy the luxurious state of a millionaire. Thirty days out of the three hundred and sixty-five he dined off Dover sole, caviare, roast chicken and the finest dishes procurable; the other three hundred and thirty-five days he fed meagrely on the staple foods of the very poor—cheese, herrings, streaky bacon, etc.

Such extremes of luxury and discomfort were, the price this human oddity gladly paid to be treated as a millionaire for a few passing days each year. Yet in whatever role he figured, whether the Rowton House lodger of the long spring, summer and autumn months, or the honoured "millionaire" hotel guest of the one June month (the London season), he conducted himself as to the manner born. He might expressly have been cut out for his incredible double life.

Discussing the strange fellow with the hotel manager who had pledged me to secrecy, I asked myself whether the spirit of J.M.W. Turner, the most famous landscape painter, had not, by some magical means, passed into him, for in the reverse sense that great man was inclined to almost the same kind of eccentric behaviour. Though he had a fortune rapidly mounting towards £150,000, Turner loved to take nocturnal rambles in Limehouse and Wapping, finding pleasure in the people met in the lowest side streets.

In the last phase of his life, when his official address was Queen Anne-street, he developed a mania for disappearing. For days at a time he vanished, without venturing to offer the slightest explanation for his absences. When his friends pressed him to disclose his new retreat he put them off with all sorts of subterfuges and adroit evasions. Finally a letter found in an old coat-gave his housekeeper the necessary clue, and she tracked him down. He had taken a house at Chelsea, near Cremorne Gardens. There Turner, the greatest landscape painter in England, if not in the world, had become Admiral Booth—or, in moments of familiarity, "Pugy" Booth.

Mild in comparison is the dissimulation of Haroun al Raschid, the famous Caliph of the Arabian Nights, who, indistinguishable from an ordinary citizen, would wander unrecognised about the streets of Bagdad, in order to hear what the common people were saying. Perhaps for a case to match that of Turner's we must fall back on the instance of the Scottish king who, weary of his crown, and the heavy responsibilities of a

The Very Idea!

ALWAYS LOOK A HORSE IN THE FACE

By Eddie Kelly, Horse Follower

HAVE you joined the Back to the Horse Movement? In other words, how much did you lose at Happy Valley yesterday?

What we'd like to see is something original at the races. People are getting tired of the same old thing year after year, going out in taxis, watching the same old horses lose their same old money, and coming home in tram-cars.

Let's have a few innovations. For instance, as soon as a race-gear enters the gate, he should be presented with a toy balloon and carnival cap. Prizes could be given for the best fancy dress costumes, with special prizes for best impersonation of successful punter.

A better innovation would be to hand jockeys who don't come in first, second or third over the fence to punters. This arrangement could also be made to apply to the starter who raised the tape when the hot favourite was facing in the opposite direction.

As the annual races are so well patronised by ladies, a number of huge mat-sheds should be erected to park them in. This would prevent them from cramping betting arrangements.

Pass-out checks should be issued at the tiffin interval, in order to enable race-goers living in Kowloon to go home, have a tiffin, mow the lawn, do odd jobs around the house, dress again, bite finger-nails and return to the course long before the official tiffin party had gulped down its frankfurter and beer.

To save innocent men from persecution, Ladies Enquiry Offices should be established throughout the course. Ladies wishing to know "What Price Glory?" etcetera, should have to apply to their own offices, where the attendants can be relieved from their exacting duties every five minutes.

In conclusion, there should be a Suggestion Box at each entrance. No more than one suggestion should, however, be accepted from each punter as to what should happen to the rank outsider that beats the favourite in the last race.

HORSEFEATHERS

We refuse to mention names, but here is the story about the local racehorse owner who told off his chemist. "Wattnell," he boomed, "wattnell's the idea. When I ask for embrocation for a pony's legs I want embrocation—not lavender water, like the last bottle you sold me—I rubbed it on my griffin the day before yesterday, and ever since the griffin has done nothing but look at himself in the water trough and sigh."

A NEW COMPETITION

Well, children, ever since we saw that Film Competition in a local newspaper we have become competitive all over. So we have prepared a teeny weeny film competition all for yourselves. All you have to do is to supply the missing letters in these film players' names:—
R*Y*N N*v*RO
GR*te GRB*
OW*N NO*RES

Just in case it was too difficult, here is the solution: Ramon Navarro, Greta Garbo, Kay Francis, Owen Noares. And if any of you little squibs complain that the last name is spelt wrongly, all we can say is that even at your age you should know that there is an O-in Nares.

LOCH NESS

Dogberry disputes Nathaniel Gubbins' claim: "Funny that only one journalist and that journalist me—should hold the secret of Loch Ness, he says."

The "monster" is none other (as we say in the children's magazines)—is none other than Col. D.H.L.*wr*nce, the uncrowned King of Arabia. He is doing "hush-hush" work for the Government, planning sites for aeroplane hangars.

A self-sacrificing piece of work, especially when the Loch freezes. My interview with the "Monster" was necessarily a guarded one. In accordance with War Office instructions (handed to me, at a West End restaurant, in the form of a potato rissolo) I visited the Loch disguised as a ticket-inspector.

After giving the password, the head of Col. L*wr*nce appeared cautiously above the surface. I then set up a red and green Veroy light, in accordance with instructions.

"Is that Colonel L*wr*nce?" I now inquired in a hoarse whisper. "No," replied the "Monster." "No," you "Shaw?" said I. "There was a cackle of girlish laughter and the "Monster" disappeared below the surface."

"Seriously, Emil, when can you drop out to the house and teach my wife something about cooking?"

AMERICAN ON FALSE PRETENCES CHARGE

V. R. C. ACCOUNT DISPUTE

COLLECTION FROM LANE CRAWFORD'S

SECRETARY'S EVIDENCE

William Arthur Tanner, jur., of Chicago, U.S.A., appeared before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning charged with falsely obtaining the sum of $40 from Lane, Crawford Ltd., on November 25 last, by pretending he was authorised to collect it on behalf of the Victoria Recreation Club. Defendant pleaded not guilty.

Detective-Sergeant C. Mottram said defendant was alleged to have negotiated advertising contracts for the V.R.C. when he was a visiting member. The bill amounted to $40, Lane, Crawford's having paid this sum over to Tanner. Later the Club rendered another account and correspondence revealed that they had not received the money.

Detective-Sergeant F. Mintey deposed to arresting Tanner at the Central Police Station yesterday on a warrant.

MONEY PAID.

Giving evidence, Mr. T. M. L. Redmond, accountant of Lane, Crawford Ltd., stated that on November 25, Tanner came to the office to collect $40 for advertising in a programme. He was shown up to the office by an assistant in the sports department. The bill was already stamped and initialed by the defendant. Witness handed the money to his clerk who paid it over to Tanner. Later a duplicate of the bill was received and it subsequently came to witness's knowledge through a communication that all bills were to be paid by cheque direct to the Hon. Treasurer of the V.R.C. Replying to Sergt. Mottram, Mr. Redmond said there had been considerable correspondence with the V.R.C. over this matter. Mr. Dixon, Hon. Secretary of the Club, had seen the complainants personally and told them that Tanner was not authorised to collect money.

Witness recalled a conversation when Tanner went to see Mr. Brown, the Manager, that he (Tanner) was going to see Mr. Dixon and put matters right.

TANNER'S STATUS.

Mr. P. A. Dixon, Hon. Secretary of the V.R.C., giving evidence, said he knew the defendant. He was a visiting member, but as he had not paid his subscriptions he did not even enjoy the privileges of a visiting member. Tanner had never been a member of the committee, and was never authorised to collect bills. Lane, Crawford's, as far as the witness was concerned, had not paid the bill.

Cross-examined by Tanner, Mr. Dixon said he definitely told the defendant not to have anything to do with the bills in connection with the programme for the visit of the Shanghai Y.M.C.A. swimming team.

Replying to his Worship, Mr. Dixon said the bill (produced in Court) was sent to Lane, Crawford's. How it got into the defendant's hands he did not know.

DEFENDANT'S STORY.

Tanner then entered the witness box. He stated his profession was writing. On September 27 or 28, the original agreement was made that he was to have full advertising rights and the V.R.C. to get the proceeds of the sale of programmes. He set about getting the advertisements which amounted to $100. Mr. Dixon then cut the price down to half.

Defendant continued—I felt I had lost eighty dollars on the deal. When I was not paid, I let it go at that and I resigned. Some time later, I was advised that Lane, Crawford's had not paid their account and would not pay it until I had seen Mr. Ainslie. I was told this by Mr. Butt and Mr. MacNider, of the sports department. On a later day, Mr. Butt asked me "for the love of Mike" to see Mr. Ainslie. Mr. Butt gave me the bill. I kept it in my pocket and did not do anything for a few days. Mr. Butt again spoke to me and Mr. MacNider asked me to do something about it. Mr. Ainslie felt that Lane, Crawford's owed $20 rather than $40. I went to see Mr. MacNider and asked him if he remembered the circumstances and called over Mr. Ainslie who OK'd the bill and I got the money. I did not hand the

WHITE HOUSE VETO CERTAIN

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, London, 1934. Received, February 28, 8.45 a.m.)

Washington, Feb. 27. A stir has been caused in political circles by the action of the Senate in passing the Independent Offices Bill with the inclusion of important amendments, restoring more than $354,000,000 of war veterans' benefits, which were cut in last year's economy act.

Administration leaders declared that President Roosevelt would refuse to accept the Bill in its present form and would veto the Bill as a result of the bonus amendments.

In the meantime, the Senate has defeated the proposal for the making of a cash payment of $2,400,000,000 in return for the Bonus certificates.—United Press.

Routor adds that the action of the Senate in approving the Bonus amendment to the Independent Offices Bill is in flat defiance of the Administration's economy plans.

The amendment involves the immediate provision of $55,000,000 for the benefit of 29,000 veterans of the war whose disabilities were presumed to be of service origin, but who were removed from the rolls under the Economy Act.

Federal Commission Bill in Senate

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, London, 1934. Received, February 28, 8.45 a.m.)

BRITISH FINANCE FIGURES

SLIGHT DECLINE IN REVENUE

London, Feb. 27. The latest Treasury returns show that ordinary revenue for the current year up to 24th February amounted to £331,766,084. At the corresponding date of last year the amount stood at £333,749,452.

Ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled £396,392,255, as compared with £734,222,340 at the corresponding date last year.—British Wireless.

money over to the V.R.C. because I felt, as they kept me waiting so, they could wait. The initials on the bill are my own and there was no intent to defraud Lane, Crawford's.

Cross-examined by Sergt. Mottram, Tanner replied—I did not report to the V.R.C. that I had collected the money, nor did they report that they had collected money of mine.

OTHER EVIDENCE.

Mr. W. L. Butt, of Savarin House, Kowloon, called as a witness for the defence, stated he worked for Lane, Crawford's for seventeen months up to December 1 last. He was not sure whether Mr. Dixon told him (witness) or the defendant that the Hongkong Brewery and Lane, Crawford's had not paid their bills for advertising. Witness knew the V.R.C. had not paid Tanner any money. He was sure he gave the bill to Tanner a few days after it was given to him (witness) by Mr. Ainslie.

Defendant expressed a wish to call another witness. Mr. E. W. Friman, of the K.D. Petroleum Company of China, was called and after he had given testimony, his Worship remarked that he would like to have the evidence of Mr. Ainslie. The case was remanded to tomorrow morning, defendant being allowed bail of $100.

LONDON HUNGER MARCHERS

MR. MCGOVERN'S DEMAND

DISCUSSION IN COMMONS

London, Feb. 27.

Mr. Maxton's protest on the steps of No. 10, Downing Street, against the refusal of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald to receive a deputation from the hunger-marchers, was followed up by agitation in the House of Commons.

When Mr. McGovern, the Glasgow extremist, asked the Prime Minister this afternoon that time should be given to discuss a proposal that representatives of the unemployed marchers should be received at the bar of House, Mr. MacDonald replied that the whole problem of unemployment was engaging the constant attention of the Government.

He added that the Bill now before Parliament was designed to make possible an improvement in the lot of those who were unfortunately unemployed. "The views of all sections of the people," he went on, "are made known in this House through their elected representatives, and in the opinion of the Government no advantage would be gained by acceding to the honourable member's request."

After further discussion, it was arranged that the motion should be discussed at the conclusion of to-night's sitting, which is devoted to the committee stage, now approaching its close, of the Unemployment Bill.—British Wireless.

PRINCE FLIES TO FAIR

NOT DETERRED BY SNOWSTORMS

London, Feb. 27.

When the Prince of Wales flew in his private aeroplane to-day from Windsor to the British Industries Fair in Birmingham, he encountered snowstorms, heavy clouds and very bumpy conditions.

He made an extensive tour of the Fair and showed great interest in many of the displays, which are principally devoted to Birmingham to the heavy industries.

Both London sections of the Fair were to-day visited by the Prime Minister, who declared himself much impressed. "The Fair gets better every year," he said, "and it cheers me to hear of the great improvement in trade being done."—British Wireless.

L.C.C. BUDGET PRESENTED

London, Feb. 27.

Estimates for the coming year were presented at the London County Council meeting to-day. London's budget anticipates an expenditure during the coming financial year of over £29½ million, a reduction of £500,000 on last year's figure. Several millions are allotted to housing, mainly slum clearance and improvements.

There is a reduction of 2d. in the rates, to 6/11½ in the £.—British Wireless.

The Arts Association of the H. K. University will hold a debate with the Medall in the Union Assembly Room on Monday, March 5, at 8.30 p.m. The subject is that "Co-education is a success in this University."

BRIGHT SHOW AT QUEEN'S

REVUE'S CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

Several new features were introduced by the "Hello Hongkong" Revue yesterday evening and the programme was much more pleasing than on the first three nights.

Miss Charlotte Siegrist received a great ovation from the large house at the conclusion of each of her songs, the installation of a microphone enabling her put over her wonderful voice which on the first night was rather lost to the back seats.

Robert Rhodes again delighted the audience with his vigorous baritone voice, and drew from them hearty applause.

Perhaps the most daring item of the colourful programme was a fan dance executed by Laverne Lambert.

A little stage finish would make the show almost impossible to criticise, but, as it is, "Hello Hongkong" is well worth seeing. The final performances will be given to-night, and to-morrow evenings, with a matinee to-morrow.

Saints' Team For Mamak Needle Game

RADIO'S FATE IN MAMAK TOURNEY

Positional forward line changes, which should strengthen their attack considerably, have been made in the St. Andrew's Club team to meet the Radio Sports Club in a Mamak Hockey Tournament fixture on the Marina ground to-morrow at 5 p.m. weather permitting.

The fixture is a "needle" one, as should the Radio be defeated or even be held to a draw, their chances for premier honours in the tournament will be shattered. The Police are still the leaders, and the only team with a hundred per cent. record to date.

The changes in the Saints forward line are as follows:—A. S. Bliss, from inside-right to right back; F. A. Broadbridge from right back to right wing; N. A. E. Mackay from centre-forward to inside-right; E. F. Fincher from inside-left to centre-forward; and E. C. Fincher is being brought in at inside-left.

throne, wandered far afield, proclaiming himself a beggar whose worries, proportioned to his means, were infinitesimal.

Of John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man—his fortune was once estimated at 600 million dollars—they used to say that he was a poor philanthropist, who was hard pressed to spare a few dollars. Armed with a bagful of dimes, he would distribute the contents to deserving workers on his estate, and the smiles he received in return, and for which he patiently waited, made his amusing pose seem all the more real.

We have the Bible, which never fails us, to round off our illustrations with the moving masquerade of Joseph before his brethren, who had come up to Egypt to buy corn. Who shall forget the way he dissembled before them—pretending to mistake them for spies; then casting them into prison and, finally, when his aged father, the patriarch Jacob, had been persuaded to send along his youngest son, Benjamin, revealing himself, amidst tears, to these, his astonished brethren, as the Joseph they had sold into captivity? In the days that those transactions lasted what a double life he led, this Hebrew interpreter of dreams whom Pharaoh delighted to honour!

Adorn the theme with a moral, and we are done with the reader: Better be your real self, whatever the pains and penalties, than some flimsy person, whatever the imagined benefit. Then, least of all, shall we come to harm. Leave the masquerade to eccentrics, and people, like tragic Castledale, who live on their wits.

LIKELY F. A. AND SCOTTISH CUP SEMI-FINALISTS

ARSENAL, PORTSMOUTH
LEICESTER AND MANCHESTER CITY

MOTHERWELL, ST. JOHNSTONE AND RANGERS

ST. MIRREN AND CELTIC MAY HAVE TO MEET AGAIN

(By "The Pilgrim")

WITH the quarter-finals of both the English and Scottish Cup competitions being played off on Saturday, Homeside fans will have one of the greatest football feasts of the season—greater even than the Cup final to which thousands have already made application, to find that the capacity of the venue has long been filled.

Arsenal have the fates on their side this season and, but for the luck of the draw, it is hardly likely that they would have continued thus far in a competition which they entered so inauspiciously.

The previous rounds enabled them to settle down in their stride now and the visit of Aston Villa will not be the obstacle it would have been a month ago. The Villa have been going great guns but I cannot easily imagine a report of their victory.

Manchester City are the only Club in this round who survived the distance last season and they have a great chance of going even further. Stoke have improved considerably lately and took points from Aston Villa in the League last week, but it is unlikely that they will beat the City on their own ground.

It is not so unlikely however, as Northampton's collapse of Huddersfield at the First Division's pitch in the fourth round.

I wonder if Portsmouth will hold the pace they have been setting lately. I think they will win despite the bad luck they encountered in the draw. They travel to Bolton and will probably meet with even more exciting scenes than at Swansong.

The Preston-Leicester match is the most difficult to forecast.

Matters are a little easier north of the border where Aberdeen and Albion Rovers sustain the challenge from the junior divisions. Albion have a sporting chance, being at home to Motherwell, but the League leaders seem to do better away from home and I expect them to win.

Queen o'South will give St. Johnstone a great game and if they had retained their form of a month or so ago I would fancy them for the semi-finals. As it is I feel that the home club have the winning advantage.

Rangers have the easiest task in entertaining Aberdeen, and Celtic have perhaps the most difficulty in their journey to St. Mirren. Although the latter have proved poor League fighters, they will go all out in the major competition of the year.

This Special Cup Training Is Only Superstition

OLD LEAGUE PLAYER SAYS WHAT CLUBS NEED IS REST CURE

The Cup quarter finals to be played on Saturday make this article from the pen of a former player especially interesting now.

"At this stage of the football season, when players are beginning to feel the strain of the League programme and F.A. Cup ties, the question of special training causes a great deal of controversy among players and spectators alike. Opinion is sharply divided as to whether it is beneficial to a team."

"Personally, I was not greatly in favour of going to the seaside or into the country for a long period. I much preferred to get on to a golf course, where I could obtain all the exercise I wanted. In those days there were trainers to whom the name of golf was a curse; so I had put in many spells away from home."

REST FOR CUP TIES.

"It has many advantages and, frankly, in the long run, I think it does a lot of good if, like medicine, it is taken in small doses. But to go week after week to the seaside before each round of the Cup, as some teams did in the early days, was a superstition. They do so because, once upon a time, a team did something out of the ordinary after staying in such and such a place."

"Take the Arsenal and Chelsea as typical examples. Arsenal now go to Brighton regularly, staying at the same hotel, mainly because it was from there that they won the Cup four years ago. Chelsea are going back to Guildford for the reason that they have not lost a match since taking up their quarters there."

"In my opinion, it is a mistake to overdo the special training business. The change of air, the companionship and the restfulness of mind have supplied the required tonic in the first instance. Surely,

another pick-me-up is not required a fortnight later."

"After all, the players are perfectly fit at this period. The idea of special training is not to try to make them fitter, but to prevent them from being overtrained or, as it is called, from becoming stale. As a matter of fact, special training is the wrong description. It should be called 'special rest for Cup ties.' Once a season should be enough."

"While on the subject of fitness, I wonder how many people realise how perfectly trained, and how hard a player really is! I did not myself until my playing days were over."

CUP FINAL TICKETS.

Whenever I meet an old friend or player he usually greets me with: "Why, you look fit enough to turn out again." So it will be gathered that in appearance I have altered little, but in fitness, compared with my playing days, I am an invalid. I would not last five minutes of an average League game.

If I needed any confirmation of this fact I had it recently when playing with the schoolboys, a part of the coaching scheme at Highbury. After ten minutes, although practically walking through the match, I could scarcely drag one leg after the other. Moreover, where my instep had come into contact with the ball it was black and blue.

Probably the explanation is that the muscles have disappeared into flesh. At any rate, my weight is now 11b. less than it was during my career, according to the scales at the Highbury Stadium.

It is interesting to note here that the demand for Cup Final tickets has been as great as ever. Already the number for disposal to the public has been over-applied for and they can only be obtained now through the clubs and the various county associations.

SPECTACULAR SAVE.—Wilson of the Arsenal effects a magnificent save at the expense of a corner against Crystal Palace. (Planet News).

FOOTBALL CHATTER BY "THE PILGRIM"

INTERESTING ITEMS GLEANED FROM THE VARIOUS CAMPS

LESLIE, the Plymouth Argyle forward, has been to London to consult an eye specialist. He is suffering from an injury due to a loose football lace.

CHESTERFIELD returned £1,200 to unsuccessful applicants for seats at the Aston Villa Cup tie.

"UTILITY" Nicholas, of Derby has deputised as goalkeeper, right back, and centre half because of injuries to players.

FRED Roberts, of Birmingham, was playing minor football a few weeks ago. He is already hailed as a star.

CANNOCK Town, the Birmingham League club, are in bad straits financially. They have placed all their professional staff upon the open transfer list.

NORMAN Cole, the latest local to make a hit in Southampton's League side, has not yet finished his apprenticeship. He is a fitter.

CLAPTON Orient have set up a record for Third Division clubs. Two centre forwards on their staff up to a week or so ago, shared an aggregate of 500 League goals—Morris (291) and Halliday (209).

JAMES Nelson (Newcastle), Harry Morton (Aston Villa), Vivian Gibbins (Southampton), Harry Race (Notts Forest), George McNeary (Bristol Rovers), and Ernest Whitlam (Chester) all celebrate birthdays together.

TWO seasons ago Plymouth Argyle were thinking of letting Archie Gorman go. It would need a big bid now.

GREENBANK, the Dartford (Kent League) outside left, is a reporter. He refused to turn professional when approached by Bolton.

5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

THIS AIR-BALL PLAY

(By "Saracen").

It is a common complaint of modern football that the ball is too often in the air. There are two reasons for this. One is the lack of attention to the details of positional play and the other to the eagerness of teams to force the pace and score by hook or by crook.

The suggestion that faulty positional play leads to the ball being kicked into the air may seem strange. But suppose, for instance, that a wing half back has the ball at his feet under control and that he takes it forward a few yards. His object is to make a pass to one of his own forwards, but on looking up he finds the men to whom he might send the ball stationary. Moreover they have opponents standing by them. In the circumstances it is not worth while to put them in possession.

What can be done? It is certain that he will be challenged and his only alternative to the risk of being robbed is to get rid of it.

So he kicks it haphazardly into the middle and up it goes into the air and he trusts it may go to his own centre forward rather than to an opposing defender.

This blind kick would have been avoided if one of the forwards within reach of him had made it his business to get to position. The half back would then have had the opportunity to get the ball through to him by means of an accurate ground pass.

In regard to the other cause of "air-ball" play teams are obsessed with the idea of gaining ground quickly and in pursuing this policy they resort to the long pass. This style does not permit of much accuracy. Indeed it amounts to little more than hard kicking. There is little constructive play and there is no real attempt to "make" a goal. Rather by putting the ball in the air and going hard after it they hope to worry an opponent into a mistake from which a chance to get in a successful shot may come.

In my experience there has been a marked development of this type of football this season and the result has been that the game has lost a good deal of its spectacular charm. It has driven out close and inter-passing movements and their stead we have had a style of play that has been notable for the hurry and scurry of the players rather than for their science and craft.

WHAT CONTESTANTS THINK ABOUT TO-NIGHT'S FIGHT

I WILL BE WORLD'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION—LOUGHRAN

QUALITIES COMPARED

(SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH").

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received February 28, 8.50 a.m.)

Miami, Flo. Feb. 27. Primo Carnera, world's heavyweight champion, and Tommy Loughran, aspirant to this title, report themselves perfectly fit for their big fight over 15 rounds scheduled to take place at Madison Square Gardens to-morrow night. Carnera's title is not officially at stake, but victory for Loughran would entitle him to demand a recognised world's championship bout.

Both fighters rested to-day, having ended their heavy training several days ago. They will weigh in to-morrow afternoon at 1.30 p.m. The bout is expected to start at 10 p.m., E. S. T.

Both camps were confident of victory. Carnera was voluble to-day as he explained how he would halt Loughran.

"Tommy Loughran is a very nice boy," he said, "but I will beat him down. He is too little, too light, and he could not hurt me if he hit me all day. I know I'm right, because I have seen him fight three fights—once against Sharkey, one against Levin-sky, and one against the late Ernie Schaaf. Our fight is scheduled for fifteen rounds, but he'll be lucky to stay with me ten."

Supporting Carnera's prediction that Loughran would not last long are two of his sparring mates, Arthur Huttick and Harold May.

"He hits like a horse," said Huttick. "He hits harder than that," said May, who is the young man Gene Tunney once named as the coming champion of the world.

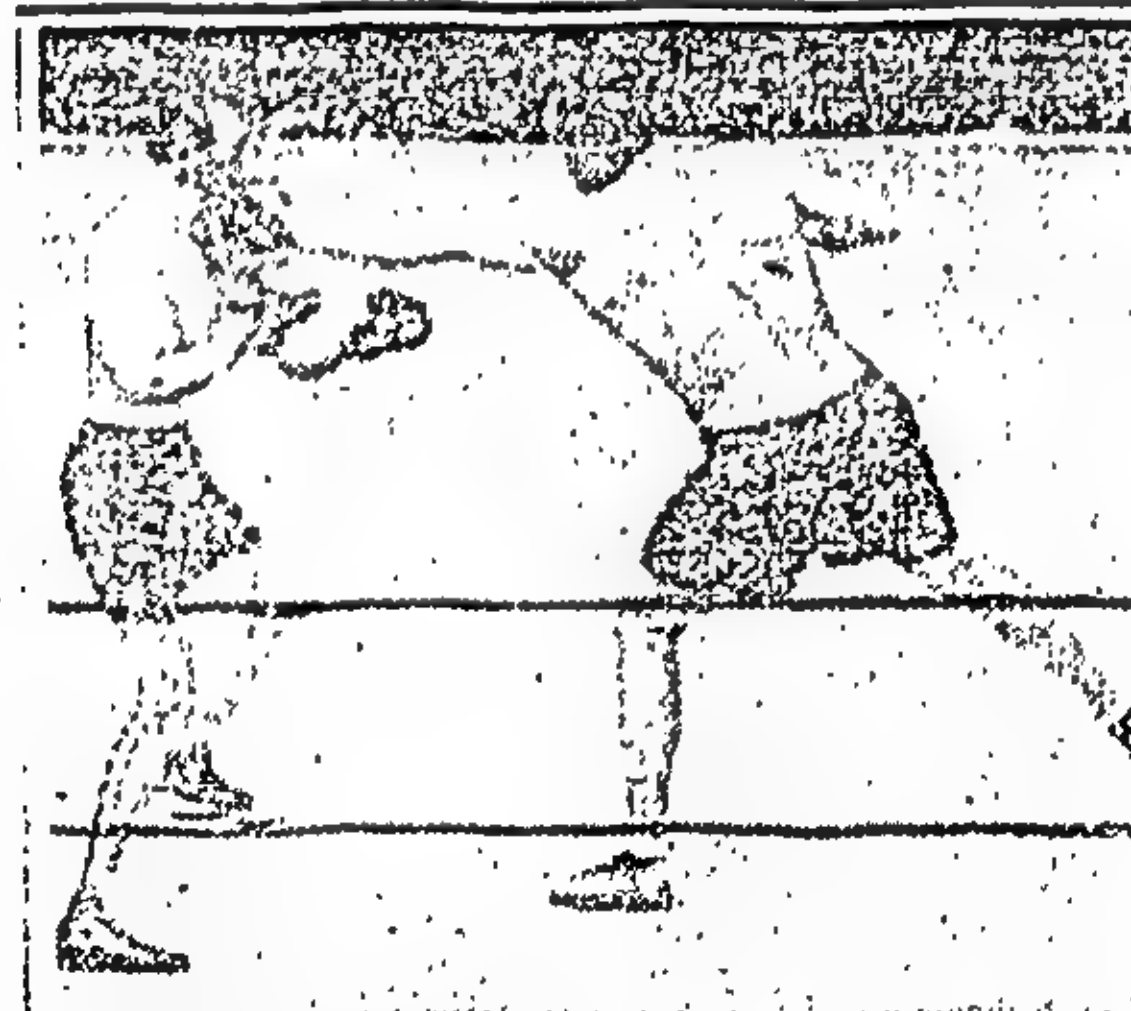

Loughran predicted that he would outpoint Carnera.

"Carnera, I know, is much bigger than me, but I beat Impellittere and wasn't bigger than Primo," said Tommy to-day.

"Sharkey made the mistake of trying to slug with Primo. I plan to keep away from those sweeping punches and outbox him for fifteen rounds. And when I return to Philadelphia I will be the world's Heavyweight champion."

"Speed will beat Primo, and I'm going to show him that I have plenty of that. I have fought several fifteen rounders against greater men than Carnera ever has faced."

ACTION:—This picture vividly portrays the inimitable Primo in action. Here he is seen delivering the punch which sent Schaaf to the boards unconscious. Schaaf did not live to fight again.

TENNIS TO RE-START

(By "Veritas").

After a lapse of four days, matches in the open tennis championships will, this time weather permitting, be resumed at the Cricket Club to-morrow.

But the programme is very restricted, only three encounters being set down for to-morrow and two on Friday.

Furthermore unless conditions considerably improve these will have to be held over until next week.

The already postponed doubles tie between Sullivan and Duff and Tam and Ng Kam-chuen is down for decision on Thursday, and this is about the most attractive tie, it suggests a fairly comfortable win for the British pair, who are certainly much stronger as a combination. Tam is still wanting in his doubles play, and it is doubtful whether Ng, excellent as he is, can make up the difference.

SERIOUS PROPOSITION. G. R. M. Ricketts will come up against his first serious proposition in Lu Tak-cheuk, who is playing as well as ever this year as his success against F. H. Kwok testifies. The soft court should be of assistance to the Chinese who has plenty of twist shots at his command, and Ricketts may find it hard to exploit his driving.

There should be plenty to interest in the meeting between Capt. Cannon and Ng Kam-chuen on Friday. Ng has improved out of all knowledge since last year, but that Capt. Cannon has in no way lost any form is indicated by his success over Lieut. Hoare in the Club tournament, following the Navy man's victory against Cassamboy.

The programmes arranged for the next two days are:

OPEN SINGLES.

G. R. M. Ricketts v. Lu Tak-cheuk.

OPEN DOUBLES.

A. L. Sullivan and W. A. H. Duff v. Tam Yoc-fong and Ng Kam-chuen.

ARMY READY FOR EMERGENCIES

RUMOURS OF HAPSBURG RESTORATION

ULTIMATUM EXPIRY

VIENNA, FEB. 28.

EVENTS IN AUSTRIA ARE BEING WATCHED WITH THE CLOSEST ANXIETY. THE AIR IS FULL OF RUMOURS AND AGAIN THERE ARE REPORTS OF FIGHTING ON THE AUSTRO GERMAN FRONTIER.

These rumours of "incidents" on the border are baseless, according to Dr. Dollfuss, who granted an interview to Reuter last night.

The Chancellor insisted that all was quiet in all parts of Austria. Precautions have been taken to prevent any incident on the German border.

He emphasised that no movement of troops has been ordered to the Czecho-Slovakian frontier. The Government had merely ordered a movement of Auxiliary Corps formations in Upper Austria to maintain public security. —Reuter.

RESTORATION RUMOURS

Story of Mysterious Communications

Vienna, Feb. 27. The situation is uneasy owing to the expiry at noon to-morrow of Herr Habsicht's ultimatum to Austria.

Fears of foreign intervention are complicated by reports of mysterious communications between Vienna and the chateau near Brussels which is the home of the Archduke Otto.

There has been unusual activity at Otto's castle recently, but an official statement has been issued there declaring that the youthful Archduke will not go to Austria. It is authoritatively stated in Paris that the French Government is strongly opposed to the restoration of the Hapsburgs, as is also the Czecho-Slovakian Government. —Reuter.

ITALIAN ARMY READY

But Not Expecting Need For Action

Rome, Feb. 27. It is understood that the only recent reinforcement of the Italian frontier has been the movement of eight thousand troops to Padua, ready to be rushed to the Austrian frontier in time for any fighting in Vienna.

The Italian army, however, is fully prepared to cope with any situation that may arise, although the authorities do not envisage the necessity for any action. —Reuter.

BRITISH CONSULAR CHANGE

NEW APPOINTMENT TO DANZIG

London, Feb. 27. It was stated at the Foreign Office to-day that the status of the consular post at Danzig having been raised to that of Consulate General, Mr. L. M. Robinson, now British Consul at Amsterdam, where he holds the rank of Consul General, has been promoted and appointed to fill the post at Danzig.

Mr. Robinson's place at Amsterdam will be taken by Mr. Buchanan, formerly Consul at Baltimore. —British Wireless.

FRENCH BUDGET APPROVED

MINOR AMENDMENTS IN SENATE

Paris, Feb. 27. After approving several amendments, the Senate to-night voted the whole of the Budget Bill by 208 votes to 13.

The Bill will now be returned to the Chamber for discussion regarding the amendments. No difficulty is expected to experience in completing the passage. —Reuter.

THE CORPORATIVE STATE

Experiment Begun in Austrian Tyrol

Vienna, Feb. 27. A move towards the creation of a Corporative State has been made in the Tyrol, where the Landtag (or local parliament) has voluntarily dissolved and delegated its functions to the local governor.

The Governor plans to take three Heimwehr representatives into the local government and then to nominate a so-called Advisory Committee of twelve members, consisting of workers, traders, professional men and clergy on a guild basis.

The reorganised "government" will function temporarily, pending the reconstruction of all local governments on a guild basis as demanded by the Heimwehr. —Reuter.

SILVER'S PRICE

ANOTHER APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

Shanghai, Feb. 27. A message sent to President Roosevelt by the Shanghai Foreign Residents' Association, consisting of twelve nationalities, "earnestly requests you to consider the effect on China of any proposed silver legislation."

The Association considers that essential legislation should be limited to affecting the price of silver in the U.S.A. without affecting world prices.

It is necessary for Chinese prosperity, continues the message, that the price of silver be advanced proportionately as general commodity prices advance.

China escaped the major effects of the world depression through the low price of silver. Other countries, it was pointed out, experienced disastrous results from a high value currency unit and remedied the situation by devaluing their currencies.

China's imports must be paid for by exports, or credits to China, or draining the country of silver.

A rise in the price of silver could cause a disastrous collapse of land and commodity prices, and the Association believes that boosting of silver price abroad would necessitate an embargo or an export duty on silver, thus putting China on a managed currency. —Reuter.

Mr. Kung Reticent.

Nanking, Feb. 27. Interviewed by the Chinese Press on his return here from Shanghai this morning, Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, declined to discuss the silver question beyond saying that the matter was receiving the Government's closest consideration.

Meanwhile, it is reported that silver will be discussed at to-morrow's meeting of the Central Political Council. —Reuter.

ANGLO-JAPANESE COTTON TALKS

HIGHLY DELICATE SITUATION

London, Feb. 27.

A highly delicate situation has arisen in the Anglo-Japanese cotton negotiations and the threat of a breakdown before the talks have fairly begun is looming dangerously large.

It was, in fact, stated late this evening that the arrangements for a further meeting between the delegates to-morrow had been postponed until further notice.

The report was denied within an hour, however, the British delegation issuing an official statement declaring that both sides will be present at the Board of Trade to-morrow (Wednesday).

It is admitted by the Lancashire delegates that the situation is extremely delicate although every effort will be made to find a way out.

The difficulties centre around the desire of the Japanese delegation to limit the discussions to special geographical areas. The British delegation insist that unless the whole purpose of the negotiations is to be defeated, worldwide scope is essential for the discussions. —Reuter.

RAILWAY SMASH IN AMERICA

New York, Feb. 26.

Twenty are dead and forty badly injured as the result of a terrible railway accident near Pittsburgh to-night.

Crashing over a frozen switch while travelling at a high speed, an express train plunged over a viaduct into the street below.

Frightful scenes were witnessed, and the sufferings of the injured were accentuated by the bitterly cold weather.

Firemen with saws, working with the aid of torch lights, cut through one coach to reach an imprisoned passenger.

The engine, tender and several coaches lay on the road, a twisted mass of wreckage, but fortunately, two sleeping cars and the dining car remained on the track.

First reports stated that five had been killed and twenty injured, but as relief workers set about clearing the debris, the death list mounted steadily.

It is now established that at least twenty are dead. Four are in hospital, seriously injured and a similar number were assisted or carried from the scene of the wreck, suffering from minor injuries. —Reuter.

DR. KUNG ON SILVER PRICES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Nanking, Feb. 28. Dr. H. H. Kung, the Minister of Finance, issued an important statement last evening on the silver situation.

He emphasised that his statement consisted mainly of his personal views, but it is believed that they reflect the Nanking official attitude.

His statement follows: "The Central Political Council is expected to adopt a definite policy on Wednesday dealing with the silver situation, which has been engaging the serious attention of all quarters."

"The silver problem is a very complicated one, and the rise or fall of its price has a certain influence on China's trade vicissitudes."

CHINA TO RATIFY

Nanking, Feb. 28. The Central Political Council this morning formally decided to ratify the London Silver Agreement. —Reuter.

"Personally, I think that the ratification of the London Silver Agreement, or refusal to ratify, by the Chinese Government, should not depend on the possible effect of a rise in the silver price."

CHINA'S POLICY.

"The only thing China should do is to devise a wise policy for manoeuvring the situation which might be created by the boosting of the silver price by any other nation, to her advantage."

"A rise or a fall in the silver price does not necessarily exercise direct and immediate effects on the foreign trade position of China."

"For example, during the Great War, the silver price was at its climax, but China's exporting position remained high, while China's exports at the present time are continuing on a downward trend, despite the low point to which silver has fallen."

EXPORT INFLUENCES.

"From these particular instances, we can conclude that China's exporting position is mainly determined by the purchasing power of the world in general, although the fluctuations of silver prices somewhat affect China's exports in certain respects and in certain periods."

"The Central Government has completed a careful study of this problem and will apply every possible method to make the best of the situation. An embargo on exports of silver or the taxation of silver exports are only some of the multifarious methods the Government is prepared to apply when it is found necessary." —Central News.

CANADA TO RATIFY.

It is reported from New York that Canada may shortly be expected to ratify the London Silver Agreement.

CUBA TO COIN SILVER

United States Making a Loan

Washington, Feb. 27. It is expected that the Government will make a loan of several million dollars to Cuba shortly.

The loan will be devoted solely to the purpose of purchasing silver in the United States.

The exact amount has not been revealed but it is believed that the silver will be coined into Cuban dollars. —Reuter.

It was discovered on examination that he had broken a fetlock. Charming Star was sent back to the stables where he will be further examined later. It is possible that he will be kept for stud purposes.

STEADY RAIN.

Steady drizzle had rendered racing conditions extremely difficult, ponies slipping and sliding in the mud. An effort was made to improve matters by employing a small army of coolies, but no perceptible change for the better resulted.

It was not surprising therefore that some of the certainties should come "unstuck."

Bag Tor paid an excellent dividend by defeating the favourite, Bronze Era, in the Blue Mountains Plate for Australians.

German and American Denials

(Special to "Telegraph")

A similar denial has been obtained from American official circles. —Central News.

INDIAN MUSLIMS.

LOCAL SOCIETY ISSUES ANNUAL REPORT

The annual meeting of the Indian Muslim Society will be held at the Mosque, 30 Shelly Street, on Sunday, March 4, at 2 p.m. The general committee submit the following report for the year 1933:

The membership at the beginning of the year was 1,094 and stood at 1,114 at the end of the year, showing an increase of 50 members over that of last year.

Subscriptions during the year amounted to $1,711.54. The balance brought forward from 1932 was $3,138.92. Expenditure during the year amounted to $1,195.12 balance forward to 1934 accounts comes to $3,655.34 which is more than that of the previous year by $518.42. The principal items in the year's expenditure were the salaries for the Maulvi and the Muzzin and the wages for the Mosque and cemetery coolies. A further sum of $400 was paid to Mr. Serper for general repairs to the cemetery, and a sum of $125 went towards the telephone rent.

Macao Cemetery. The general committee engaged themselves in at least one outstanding activity during the year. This was in connection with the erection of a boundary wall and a mosque at the Macao cemetery.

This scheme was sponsored by the late Khan Sahib Nawab Khan and Sahi Rahmatullah Elias about four years ago when they collected a sum of about $6,000 for the scheme. Owing to some unfortunate misunderstanding among the Muslim community at Macao the scheme was left in abeyance till the general committee again took up the matter in March and succeeded in bringing the scheme to a head, with the result that work has already started at the cemetery and will be completed within three months.

The general committee also contemplate opening a night school for the benefit of those members of the society who desire to learn religious and secular knowledge.

It will not be out of place to mention here the connection of the general committee indirectly with the erection of a Cemetery at Kowloon. This was formerly a military cemetery, but owing to certain difficulties the military could not adequately look after it, and a working committee of civil and military members was formed to take over its erection with a mosque attached. The committee was composed mostly of members of the general committee of this Society, and the work on the site has already been commenced.

In this connection the general committee take this opportunity of expressing their heartfelt thanks to Colonel Lecky and Mr. T. H. King, D.I.G.P., for the valuable assistance they have rendered the working committee.

NAVAL BUILDING LAST YEAR

London, Feb. 27.

The major powers of the world laid down fewer warships in the year ending Feb. 2, than in the year previous, in spite of the tendency to increase expenditure on national defence and the agitation in this direction in United States, France, Italy, Germany and Great Britain.

Fifty-six warships of all classes were laid down by the British Empire, the United States, France, Japan, Italy, Soviet Russia and Germany, during the year, according to official returns.

This number is fewer than in the previous year by 16 vessels.

Great Britain—United States

32; Britain is building nine submarines and the United States 22.

Britain is building ten cruisers and the United States 11, while Japan, in spite of the rumour of big programmes in Tokyo, has only two under construction.

France and Italy have six cruisers each in process of construction.

At the present time the Soviet's battle strength on the sea is small, for her naval forces consist of three battleships, six cruisers, two cruiser-mine-layers, 17 destroyers and 16 submarines.—Reuter Special.

Air Force Strength

London, Feb. 27.

A substantial increase in the strength of the Royal Air Force at Singapore is being strongly urged by Naval and Air Force officers, according to the Daily Telegraph.

The newspaper states that there is a growing demand among supporters of the Government for immediate additions to the R.A.F. strength. The agitation is for the addition of at least ten squadrons.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI RIOT

POLICE FORCED TO FIRE ON CROWD

Shanghai, Feb. 27.

The Bureau of Public Safety police were forced to fire into a crowd of fighting men, outside the Foreign Settlement limits in Yangtsepo this afternoon.

Three wharf coolies were seriously injured during the affray.

A fight commenced between rival gangs of coolies, who were unloading oil from a steamer. On the police intervening, they suffered the hostility of all combatants.

The police were forced to fire and to call out reinforcements to quell the disturbance.

Two police were badly mauled and dozens of coolies suffered minor injuries.—Our Own Correspondent.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS A Surprise! By Blosser

CLEAN FOOTBALL JOCK SUTHERLAND FAMOUS FOOT COACH ILLLEGAL interference with the receiver of a forward pass often results in serious injury to the receiver. Coaches attempt to instruct their men with the idea that they should play the ball rather than the receiver. If a defensive man makes a true attempt to bat the ball down and in this way bumps the receiver unintentionally, his action is seldom defined as interference. However, should he clearly show his interfering action by remaining on the ground and attempting to prevent the receiver from leaping into the air for a pass by bumping him none too gently, he is guilty of a foul and a serious offense against clean football. Penalty for this action, as illustrated at left, is possession of the ball by the offensive team at the spot where the foul was committed.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

We all like to get aces and kings because, as a general rule, they are sure trick-winners. But occasionally we find a hand where we must throw away an ace to make our contract.

In today's hand Mrs. Heleno Seranton of New York found it necessary to throw away not only her ace of spades, but also her king of spades, to get a coup on the East hand.

Before re-bidding the diamonds,

Q 8	10 7 6 5	A K J 10 9 8 7	None
J 10 6 5	K 7 5 3	Q J 10 9 8 7	4 3

North shows a fit in hearts by supporting the heart bid. However, when Mrs. Seranton in the South showed a stopper in clubs by a bid of three no trump, North felt that there was a good play for a slam.

The Play
West's opening lead was the queen of clubs, which Mrs. Seranton trumped in dummy with the three of hearts. She then returned the ten of hearts, East properly refused to cover and the ten was allowed to ride through.

to West's singleton king. West returned the jack of clubs, which was trumped in dummy with the six of hearts. The seven of hearts was played back. Mrs. Seranton dressed the nine, which held.

It now looked as though East's queen of hearts was safe, but Mrs. Seranton next played her queen of diamonds, and overtook in the dummy with the ace. She played the king of diamonds, discarding her king of clubs, and now started to play diamonds.

If East had trumped in, all Mrs. Seranton would have found it necessary to throw away not only her ace of spades, but also her king of spades, to get a coup on the East hand.

However, East refused to trump, so Mrs. Seranton simply ran off five straight diamond tricks, discarding all her spades, including the ace and king, and now led a spade from dummy.

East, of course, was forced to trump, having nothing but the two hearts left. Mrs. Seranton overtrumped and won the last trick with the high trump, making her contract of six hearts.

FREE AFTER FIVE MONTHS

BULGARIANS IN MOSCOW

EXPERIENCES

Moscow, Feb. 28.
"We were in handcuffs for five months, except during meals," declared Dimitroff, on his arrival here from Germany.

"We were not physically tortured," he said, "but sometimes moral and mental pressure can be much worse."

Dimitroff and the two Bulgarian colleagues who shared his experiences in Germany in connexion with the Reichstag fire trial, are staying at the Hotel Lux, all bubbling over with pleasure at their freedom.

It is expected that to-morrow, when the news of their arrival is announced, that there will be a demonstration of joy throughout the country.

Dimitroff, who puffed ecstatically at a long cigar was presented with a bouquet from Lenin's widow and sister.—Reuter.

N.R.A. INVITATION ACCEPTED

Washington, Feb. 27.
Hundreds of critics of the National Recovery Administration have responded to the invitation of General Hugh Johnson to air their views at a series of public meetings which are expected to last until March 5 and which are being broadcast countrywide.—Reuter.

THE ITALIAN PLAN

AN ECONOMIC

PARLEY IN ROME

Rome, Feb. 27.

Great importance is attached to a meeting which has been arranged between Signor Mussolini and the leaders of the Austrian and Hungarian Governments to take place at Rome shortly.

This conference now emerges as the probable explanation of Signor Savitich's recent "mystery tour."

Dr. Dollfus and Dr. Gombos will pay a three-day visit to Rome about March 12 to confer with Mussolini in regard to the Italian scheme for an economic settlement between the Danubian countries, providing for reciprocal tariff concessions by the three countries and an outlet to the Adriatic for Austria and Hungary via Trieste and Fiume.

NO POLITICAL BLOC.

Italian circles deny that there is any question of a formal political bloc between the three countries on the lines of the Little Entente. They emphasise that the cooperation contemplated will be predominantly economic and that the Italian Plan is not directed against any other nation.

Germany and the Little Entente will benefit, it is insisted, as well as Austria, Hungary and Italy.—Reuter.

AN OUTBREAK OF MENINGITIS

EIGHTEEN CASES

MONDAY.

Hongkong is at present experiencing an outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis. During last week, eighteen cases, with six deaths, were notified, ten of the cases being from Kowloon, four from Victoria and the other four from the New Territories.

Five further cases were reported on Monday, two each from Kowloon and the New Territories, and the other from Victoria. Five more cases were notified yesterday.

There were also nine cases (eight deaths) from small-pox last week, five of diphtheria (three fatal), and one each of paratyphoid fever and rabies (animal). Fifty-seven deaths occurred from tuberculosis.

Monday's returns include two cases each of small-pox, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

Ng Wun-chuen, charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy, this morning, with possession of 1,000 heroin pills at the Tai Hing wharf, was fined $1,000, or in default six months imprisonment. Revenue Officer Grimmett said the pills were tied round defendant's legs.

While working at the Wah Yu Yat Godown, West Point, a coolie, Mok Chung, aged 60, received injuries to his neck and was removed to hospital.
